Investigation underway on hazing allegations

by Arlene Surprenant
Wilmington was rocked last week by allegations of serious hazing on the part of a few high school athletes at a preseason football camp in Freedom, New Hampshire. Ironically, the allegations were brought to light just as Wilmington's football season got underway with the team racking up a two win-no loss record.

Local police and school administrators kept mum while Wilmington police conducted an investigation into the allegations last Tuesday through Thursday. The police report is now in the hands of School Superintendent William Fay and Principal Paul Fleming, who have been directed by the school committee to conduct their own investigation into the matter.

The alleged incidents took place at Camp Wakuta in August. Football coach Ed Harrison was in charge of the camp. This was the first year freshman aged 13 and 14 years were invited to the camp, said school officials.

In an effort to separate fact from rumor, Police Chief Bobby Stewart met with this reporter on Tuesday to provide some background on the case. Chief Stewart said he first learned of the "isolated" hazing incidents on Sunday, September 20 through a phone call from a high school parent. He said the suspects were apparently bragging about the hazing to fellow students. Sgt. Robert Spencer and Inspector Pat King were assigned to the case and conducted interviews of the alleged victims and alleged suspects in the presence of their parents. Since hazing is against state law and punishable by a maximum fine of $1,000 or 100 days in jail, all suspects were advised of their rights, said the Chief.

"As a result of the investigation, we did substantiate there had been some acts at football camp by a limited amount of perpetrators," said Stewart.

The police chief said there were only four allegations which could be substantiated. He refused to discuss the allegations except to say they were "simple assault charges" and "criminal offenses which are prosecutable." School board member Linda McMenimen has described the allegations as being in the nature of "sexual degradation and humiliation."

Chief Stewart said police identified five victims of serious offenses and two or three perpetrators. He explained there were others involved either as witnesses or victims of "minor" offenses. Stewart said he was convinced that school staff at the camp took "every precaution" to prevent the hazing incidents. In addition, he said, some students deserve credit for taking action of their own and trying to prevent what happened.

Despite what has been reported in other papers, police in New Hampshire have been apprised of the incidents. Chief Stewart said he spoke with Police Chief Pyne in Freedom and learned the case could be prosecuted since Freedom has assault statutes on the books. However, unlike Massachusetts, New Hampshire has no anti-hazing law. Since the hazing took place out of state, the suspects couldn't be prosecuted on that charge in Massachusetts.

In a meeting with police Friday, parents of the victims were told their options. They chose to pursue the matter through the school system and leave any disciplinary action in the hands of school administrators, said Stewart.

Throughout the investigation, Chief Stewart kept school officials briefed on the case. Fay was informed of the allegations last Tuesday. Other school representatives, including Dr. Shirley Callan, representing the school committee, were briefed Friday morning on those allegations which could be substantiated. Stewart praised school administrators for their continuing cooperation.

Dr. Callan told this paper, based on what she learned at the meeting, she notified the board's attorney and called an emergency session of the committee for Saturday morning. Members voted unanimously to direct Fay to make an evaluation of the supervision of the players at camp and recommend, if needed, any disciplinary action against supervisory staff. They also directed Fleming to investigate the matter and pursue student discipline. A full report is due the committee by October 9, said Callan. According to the school's discipline code, involved players could face suspension from school, from the team, or both.

Committee Chairman Bob Peterson did not attend Saturday's meeting because he felt the meeting was "out of place."

"Everything we had was no more than an allegation," he explained. Peterson added, however, he did support the board's directives to the administrators because "the committee and the community does have a right to know."

In the past week, the entire issue has been played out in Boston TV stations and the press. Many who spoke to this paper decried the "media circus" surrounding the case. "Any hazing is serious (but) we felt we were handling it internally. We don't need a witchhunt or media circus," said Chief Stewart.

"It has gotten out of hand," was Peterson's terse comment. "I think we have to back off and let the system work," said fellow committeeman Brad Jackson. He added, however, part of the reason the issue may have been played up is because "there was a concern this would be swept under the rug."

One football parent, who requested anonymity, expressed dismay that it reached such proportions.

"If it happened, I think it was an isolated incident. I just wish it was all over. To blame the coach, I don't know. You can't watch kids 24 hours a day," she said.

Some school board members were angry with the superintendent for not telling them about the investigation either before or during Wednesday's committee meeting. McMenimen said what bothered her the most was that Fay knew about the investigation but she had to find out Thursday night through an inquiry from the Lowell Sun.

"Why didn't he let us know? The school committee has the ultimate responsibility because it was a school related function," she maintained.

"I think the superintendent showed extremely poor judgment. What he did was to decide for us whether this was an important issue," charged Jackson.

In defense, Fay said he didn't inform the committee earlier because the charges were unproven and "there was nothing to bring to them." Stewart supported Fay's decision saying it was important to keep the people who need to know at a minimum.

Committee members stressed that the safety of students is of paramount importance. McMenimen said she was assured at an August meeting of the board by Jim Gillis, the school's athletic director, and Harrison that no hazing would occur. She added that Fay has always said his priority is the safety of all students in his care.

"We have failed those kids. And so have the superintendent and the athletic director," she said.

Her words were echoed by Dr. Callan.

"I trust the judgment of the people we employ. My primary responsibility is the safety of the kids. And they weren't safe," she maintained.

Gillis defended his department and stressed Monday that the incidents were still only allegations.

"We don't condone anything. What we try to do is teach responsibility," he said.

What about the future of Wilmington's football camp?

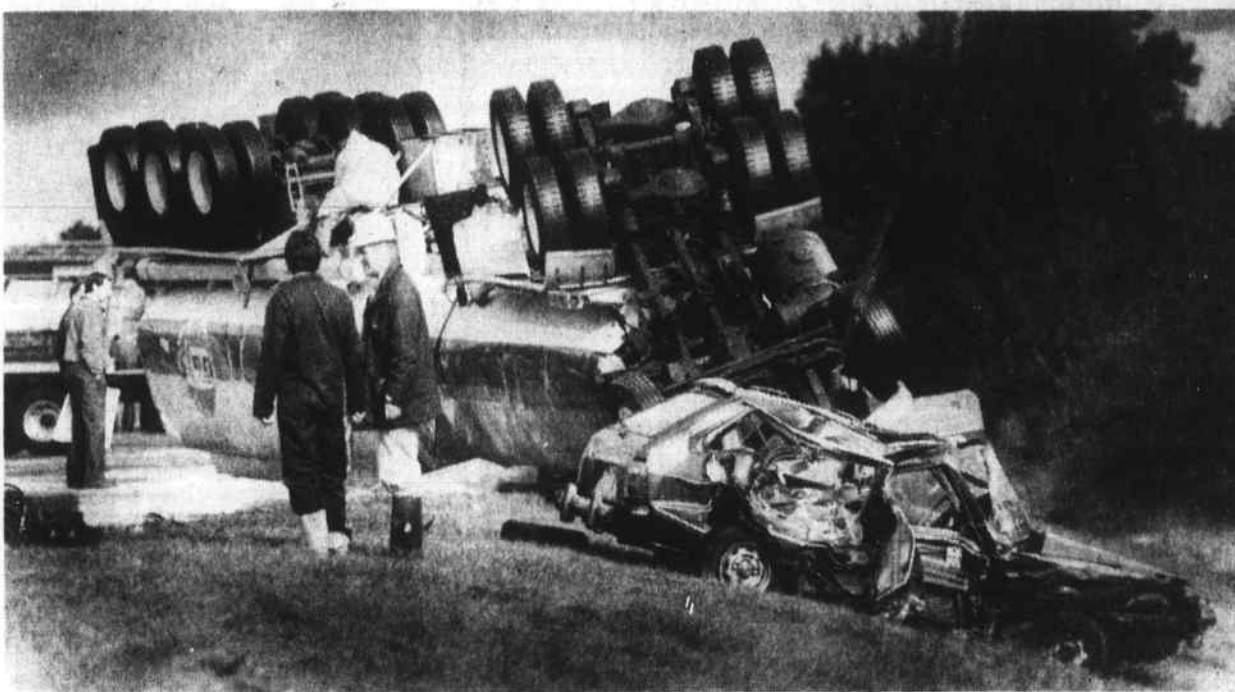

"I have no idea until we look at the whole process," said Gillis.

Committee members had other views. The majority of those interviewed said they either would not approve another camp or it was "unlikely" one would be held next year.

"I will never, never vote to approve another football camp," said Dr. Callan.

"There is no future for football camp," added McMenimen.

The school committee is expected to air the entire matter at its October 14 meeting.

Route 93 accident

A Gulf tanker landed wheels up in the median of Route 93 Wednesday morning, closing the northbound lane of the highway during rush hour. The crushed Subaru in the foreground was operated by Alan Kent of Arlington. The truck driver, Antonio Anderson, 35, of Milton was taken to Lawrence General Hospital for treatment of chemical burns and inhalation.

Tanker rollover on 93 tangles town traffic

by Larz F. Neilson
A rolled-over gasoline tanker on Route 93 made mayhem of Wilmington traffic on Wednesday. The accident occurred at 7:17 a.m. in the north bound lane near the Concord Street exit.

State police shut down the north bound lane at Route 129, resulting in massive tie-ups throughout town as rush-hour motorists tried to find new routes to their destinations. The southbound lane was also tied up, with the high-speed lane closed.

The tanker was fully loaded with 11,500 gallons of Gulf gasoline. Three of the five compartments were said to be ruptured, with a large amount of gasoline leaking onto the ground. The accident scene was very close to the Ipswich River and just upstream from the main water pumping station for the town of Reading.

Environmental clean-up teams were called to the scene. By mid-morning, police were estimating a six-to-nine hour shutdown of the northbound lane.

A car was also involved in the accident. The driver of the Subaru was taken to Winchester Hospital. No identification of either the truck driver or the car driver was available.

Wilmington fire personnel set up a command post on the scene. Local police called in auxiliaries to help direct traffic. Traffic was backed up on Route 38 into Tewksbury, and on most local roads in the vicinity of Route 93. About an hour after the accident, police blocked off Route 129 (Lowell Street) westbound at Lucci's, forcing all traffic to turn right onto Woburn Street. A tractor-trailer unit making that turn knocked over a traffic signal and a hydrant. The truck had insufficient room to make the turn because of the positioning of a police cruiser, which was being used to block the intersection.

Manager gets contract with $10,000 raise

by Larz F. Neilson
Wilmington selectmen on Monday night voted a contract for Town Manager Michael Cairra which gives him $10,000 pay increase.

The town manager had been hired 27 months ago at $65,000. After working for one year, selectmen voted to hire him on a three-year contract, and to work out terms. With other priorities, it took 15 months to put the contract together.

The contract runs from July 1, 1991 to June 30, 1994. Chairman

Mark Haldane said the pay rate is $65,000 for the first year, and $75,000 for the second and third years. This would give the manager an immediate retroactive payment of about $2600.

Prior to voting the contract, selectmen met in executive session for an hour and a half. Selectman Chester Bruce walked out of the executive session.

The vote for the contract was four-to-one, with Bruce opposed. Selectman Gerry Duggan voted for the contract, but against the pay increase.

Haldane praised the manager, and went on at length about the pay level, $83,000, that the previous manager, Buzz Stapczynski, would be earning if he had stayed. He said the town was getting a tremendous bargain.

Haldane spoke critically of whoever had leaked a draft of the contract to the press, and then specifically asked the editor of the Town Crier to name that person. He refused.

Two residents present at the meeting spoke critically of the raise.

Town retains 'A' bond rating

by Arlene Surprenant
Wilmington will retain its current 'A' bond rating, much to the delight of town officials.

Town Manager Michael Cairra told the board of selectmen Monday he received a call from Moody's Investment Service last Thursday confirming the 'A' rating.

"It (the rating) will say to potential investors the town of Wilmington is still a good buy," said the manager. A confirmed bond rating means that the town can borrow money at lower interest rates. The 'A' rating falls within the highest rating, which is AAA, and the lowest or Junk Bond

Oct. 6 deadline for voter registration

For anyone planning to vote in the presidential election, an important deadline is approaching. The last day to register to vote is next Tuesday, Oct. 6.

The Wilmington Board of Registrars will hold an all-day voter registration session at the town clerk's office in the Town Hall on Saturday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

On Tuesday, Oct. 6, voter registration will be open at the town clerk's office all day and late into the evening, from 8:30 p.m. until 10 p.m. For more information, call the town clerk's office, 658-2030.

status, said Cairra.

A call came from Moodys a month ago informing Cairra of a pending review of the town's rating and financial picture. Cairra noted, "that's not usually the type of call you want to receive," especially in light of the $1.5 million payment owed Tectron for overassessment of its plant, the town's connection with the MWRA, and officials' approval of the recent teachers' deferral.

The town's financial experts, Treasurer Joe Peters and Accountant Mike Morris, accompanied Cairra to New York and gave a one and a half hour presentation which explained that the town, from a financial management perspective, "is being well managed."

While Cairra lauded Peters, Morris, Principal Assessor Skip

Moynihan, and Assistant Town Manager Jeff Hull for their assistance, Peters, in turn, praised the manager after the meeting for his ability to put the town in the best light.

Cairra told selectmen, in 1992, there had been a trend toward downgrading a community's rating. Since January of this year, no towns had been upgraded by Moodys and nine had been downgraded, he said.

Selectmen Chairman Mark Haldane congratulated Cairra and his financial advisors on behalf of his board.

"I know it's not always easy to juggle the books and adjust the books when municipalities continue to have fixed costs rising," he said.

Moody's Credit Rating Report will soon be forwarded to the town.

Football parents issue statement

The following statement was drafted by several parents of Wilmington High School football players:

We regret any instances of hazing that may or may not have taken place at the football summer camp, however we urge support for Coach Harrison whom we know as a gentleman and devoted to the youth of Wilmington. We also urge support for the team.

We are of the opinion that confidential police investigation information was improperly made public by representatives of the school committee which grossly sensationalized the situation and embarrassed the entire student body and the town.

If any disciplinary action is to be taken it should be done in accordance with the student handbook, as approved by the school committee and administered by the principal of the high school and not become a political issue before the school committee.

Rocco's starting point for Democratic campaign bus

The Democratic Victory '92 Campaign has announced a celebration bus tour on Saturday, Oct. 3 beginning at 8 a.m. at Rocco's in Wilmington. The tour will travel across Middlesex and Essex Counties and end at the Seafarer's Union Hall in Gloucester at 5 p.m. Locally, the bus will stop at Rocco's at 8 a.m. This event will give the public an opportunity to hear Democratic candidates speak about the important issues in the 1992 campaign season.

Steve Grossman, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, will kick off the bus tour at the Wilmington event and Augusto Grace, former State Representative from Burlington who also represented Wilmington (Precinct 3) residents, will speak on behalf of the Clinton/Gore campaign. Also scheduled to speak are Regina Villa, candidate for State Senate, Sheriff John McGonigle, Rep. James Miceli, Tom Stohlman, candidate for the 21st State Rep. District (Reading, No. Reading and Precinct 6), and Charles Teddy Ferguson, candidate for the 23rd State Rep. District (Burlington, Bedford and Precinct 3). A representative of Congressman Nick Mavroules will also speak.

This event is being coordinated by Michael Cataldo of Essex. For further information, contact him at (508) 768-6654. The public is encouraged to join the bus tour at any point and to participate in the rallies. For local information, contact Jay Donovan at 658-3181.

Tutor's salary under fire

Fearful of spending any more money, members of the Wilmington School Committee on Wednesday refused to continue paying an ESL (English as a second language) tutor who is helping a Ukrainian student at Wilmington High. The student lives in Wilmington with his father and uncle and speaks little or no English.

The issue was brought up by Dr. Shirley Callan, who questioned why the school department was paying $19 an hour or $10,262 a year to a tutor from Quincy. High School Principal Paul Fleming explained the school was bound to provide help for the pupil, who speaks Polish and Russian. He said he was following the same procedure he followed with a previous student from Saigon.

"At this point in time we're comfortable with this (arrangement)," said Supt. William Fay, who supported Fleming's action.

While Callan claimed some towns pay less for their tutors, others in attendance pointed out that, under the teacher's contract, Wilmington tutors get $19.10 an hour. Linda McMenimen suggested the board look at other more reasonable alternatives, like placing the youngster in more courses so he gets a feel for the language or using peer tutors.

"We always seem to go to the ultimate. We can't afford to go to the ultimate anymore," she said.

Peg Kane suggested reducing the tutoring time to less than three hours a day to save costs.

Brad Jackson said he was unaware if there was enough money in the present budget to continue paying the tutor's salary. He, too, favored a more cost effective solution.

Fleming said he was just pursuing what he felt was in the best interest of the student. He maintained the youngster would learn more quickly by interacting with someone who spoke his own language. Fay added that, in the past, contingency funds paid for such tutors.

The board voted four to one to stop paying the tutor by the end of the week and have Fay bring in other alternatives. The lone vote in favor of the tutor was that of Chairman Bob Peterson.

"I don't find the tutoring rate out of line at all. I just fail to see what we've gained by eliminating the existing tutor," he said.

Neither Phil Fenton nor John DeMarco was in attendance at the meeting.

DeMarco departs school board

by Arlene Surprenant

Audience members were stunned last week by a letter read by school committee Chairman Bob Peterson announcing the immediate resignation of John DeMarco. DeMarco served on the Wilmington committee for three and a half years.

In his letter dated September 20, DeMarco said "personal matters make it impossible for me to continue." Peterson explained further saying that DeMarco, a family man who has volunteered for several sub-committees, wanted to spend more time with his wife and children.

The chairman praised DeMarco for being "a man of principle" and a "source of stability" for the entire committee.

"He's the man we always saw in the right places," he said.

Supt. William Fay expressed his feelings briefly calling DeMarco "one of the finest gentlemen I've ever known."

The letter of resignation has been forwarded to the town clerk's office and the board of selectmen has been notified of the vacancy. A replacement will be chosen jointly by the school board and selectmen. The replacement will serve only until the April election. Anyone wishing to fill the remaining two years of DeMarco's term will have to run in the spring election.

Those interested in the post should submit a letter of application to either the school committee or the board of selectmen as soon as possible.

New board member Oct. 13?

by Arlene Surprenant

The school board could have a replacement for member John DeMarco as early as October 13. That's the date set for the joint meeting of the Wilmington Board of Selectmen and the Wilmington School Committee to decide on a successor to the popular committeeman.

DeMarco tendered his resignation last Monday. Selectmen this Monday agreed to hold a joint meeting with the school board to fill the vacancy as soon as possible.

Interested applicants should submit letters of interest to either board before mid-October. Tentatively, the meeting will be held at 7 p.m. in room 9 at the Town Hall.

D.A. query delays search process

by Arlene Surprenant

The recommendation of a successor to Ella Belmore, executive director of the Wilmington Housing Authority, is still up in the air pending a query to the state District Attorney's office. The query was sent from the three member search subcommittee comprised of Tenants' Association President Anna Stanley, and WHA members Dot Butler and Al Meegan. The letter asks if the subcommittee can finalize their choice of candidates in executive session.

Two candidates, Ken Dorrance and Odette Kent, submitted applications for the director's position. The subcommittee had expected to make their choice during last Friday's public interview session. However, it was felt committee members needed more time to review the candidates' answers to the 16 questions posed on Friday. In addition, there was some question whether that review should be done in open or closed session, said Meegan, which led the board to seek guidance from the D.A.'s office. Meegan said he was unsure if the query would cause a delay in having a new director on board when Belmore's contract runs out October 31.

Approximately six people were in attendance at Friday's meeting. According to transcripts of that session, the meeting began with several accusations and questions raised by housing authority member Joan Sadowski. Sadowski claimed the meeting was not legal because it wasn't posted within 48 hours and because of accessibility to tenants of Denning Way. She also complained she was not informed of the interviews and had to learn about the meeting through the media.

"I, as a member, should have at least been notified," she told the subcommittee.

Butler said she asked Belmore to notify both Sadowski and fellow member Dan Gillis. Meegan said the meeting was legal.

Sadowski also took exception to the fact that correspondence relating to the candidates was sent directly to Meegan's home and not the housing authority office. Meegan replied the correspondence was the search committee's "private business." Sadowski reportedly left before the interviews got underway.

Meegan told the Town Crier this week he felt Sadowski's comments were a "disservice" to the candidate waiting to be interviewed. Each candidate was asked to answer 16 prepared questions. Those questions centered on such things as professional goals, reasons why the applicants were seeking the position, the proper relationship between the executive director and the housing authority and tenants, and the future of the authority. Questions were also asked about the candidates' resumes.

According to his resume, Dorrance served as the director of the Wilmington authority from 1983 to 1985. He has been a project and architect's representative on job sites for the state Executive Office of Communities and Development, a production manager, an instructor in law, government, and human relations, and a police captain with the Massachusetts Police Department. Dorrance holds a Bachelor's degree in sociology and a Master's degree in administration and supervision.

According to her resume, Kent is a mental health specialist and was a case worker for the Counsel of Elders in Boston for three years. She was also a case manager for Home Care for Senior Citizens Inc. in Boston and she is a member of the local housing partnership and the Wilmington League of Women Voters. In her capacity on the league, she served on various committees such as the housing and public education committees. Kent holds a Bachelor of Science degree from Boston University and graduated cum laude.

The search committee will hold a second meeting in the near future. Though he was unsure of the timing, Meegan said a finalist will be presented to the entire housing authority for its consideration.

Teachers' union wins two grievances

by Arlene Surprenant

The Wilmington Teachers' Association recently won two of its grievances against the local school committee. One of the complaints, concerning grievance hearings in open session, was filed with the state Labor Relations Commission and settled September 9. The second, concerning teacher retirement pay, was settled in arbitration and a decision issued September 4.

WTA President John Wood, who announced the settlements after Wednesday's school committee meeting, said he was pleased with both decisions.

In the first complaint, the WTA charged that the school committee was wrong in insisting that grievance hearings be held in open session. The issue was traced to a meeting in January, 1992 in which the committee insisted on an open hearing despite the objections of WTA representatives. Wood said the committee also was opposed to executive sessions in February and March. In the agreement signed by WTA Attorney Joseph Murphy and Committee Attorney Regina Tate, committee members said they would hold future hearings in executive session. The union agreed to withdraw its complaint with prejudice.

The second complaint centered on the committee's refusal to allow teachers who retire before August 1994 to count a seven percent increase as part of their retirement pay. Normally, retiring teachers get paid at the highest salary rate of the last three years in the system. But, in 1991, the WTA agreed to give back five percent of their seven percent increase to help the schools out of a financial bind. The WTA argued that the cut shouldn't affect those facing retirement. The committee didn't agree and the issue went to arbitration. Alan Altman handled the case for the committee while Murphy represented the WTA.

Wood told this paper there are still four outstanding grievances on file.

Volunteer gardening

Karen Whalen, (l to r) Christine DiGiosio and Nicole DiGiosio, from Girl Scout Troop 541, pitched to do some fall gardening in last week at the Dewing School in Tewksbury. The rest of the Troop was spread out on other gardening projects on the school grounds.

Board okays criteria for superintendent

by Arlene Surprenant

With the help of Wilmington residents who filled out a survey, members of the Wilmington School Committee voted Wednesday to use seven criteria in selecting a new superintendent.

Joanne Rys, a field representative with the Massachusetts Association of School Committees, told the school board 32 surveys had been returned from committee members and the public at large. She said responses from both were "very much in sync."

Rys said both the committee and the public were looking for an educational leader with the ability to work cooperatively with the school board. Other qualities high on the list of criteria and voted by the committee Wednesday include a strong academic background, the ability to delegate authority, the ability to develop and direct an effective management team, and the ability to develop long and short term goals.

Committeemen said they were looking for someone with central office experience, either a superintendent, an assistant superintendent, or a curriculum director. They ruled out someone with experience only as a principal.

The search sub-committee will hold an organizational meeting October 5 at the Roman House at 6:30 p.m. to discuss the interview process. Interviews of the semi-finalists will get underway the next day and conclude on October 15, when the names of the finalists will be announced. Following public interviews by the school board and site visitations, the committee hopes to have a new superintendent by November 18.

Harrison to fill teaching post

by Arlene Surprenant

Despite some misgivings by one or two members of the school board, committeemen voted four to one Wednesday to hire football coach Ed Harrison as a physical education teacher at Wilmington High. Harrison also has coached other sports and has taught in the system previously.

The $39,000 position has been a controversial one at past committee meetings. The board finally elected to fill the position with a long term sub to save money. There was some question, however, as to whether that was legal under the teachers' contract.

Athletic Director Jim Gillis recommended Harrison for the job saying he was a "terrific" teacher and role model. Parents in the audience agreed. Peggy Fleming pointed out Harrison goes above and beyond what is required in supporting his players and recommending them to college recruiters.

"He stresses education first,"

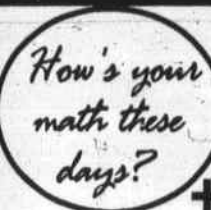

added another parent.

The lone hold-out against the new appointment was Dr. Shirley Callan. She explained she had nothing against Harrison but her priority was still money for textbooks. She added, too, she didn't want to hire any more teachers when some ruffled teachers had yet to be recalled.

Peggy Kane said she had mixed feelings about filling the position at this time. She noted, however, she had received many phone calls on the coach's behalf.

"It's very nice to have him back (in the classroom)," said Chairman Bob Peterson.

In related business, the committee also hired Jean Boland as a second grade teacher at the Wildwood and put on hold any move to fill a librarian slot at the middle school level and the position of chairman of the reading department. Though Supt. William Fay favored filling the reading position left vacant by Brenda Horan, the committee said the posting of the position required further discussion.

Opinion.....

by Kevin John Sowyrda

I don't think this is what Knute Rockne had in mind.

In a small log cabin in conservative Freedom, New Hampshire, approximately 10 Wildcat freshmen were allegedly treated in a manner that would make the most stalwart West Point plebes flinch. There are conflicting stories as to what exactly happened but most indications are that something did happen and that for reasons of jurisdiction the hands of the local police are tied.

Wilmington authorities have just concluded their intense investigation under an unusual veil of secrecy, despite a sudden barrage from the Boston media. The Boston Globe and Boston Herald each carried the story on Saturday following an article in the Lowell Sun on Friday.

It's not often that Channel Four, Five and Seven satellite vans roll down Church Street or that Dan Rea starts calling our local school board members, digging for information that many of them can't yet provide. If there's any humor in this episode, it was watching Police Chief Bobby Stewart flee the eleven o'clock news television cameras like he was under grand jury indictment. Bobby, take some advice from an old friend and supporter. Don't play Gerry Anguilo when the camera lights flick on next time. Standing still and uttering "no comment" is far more dignified.

But the press hitting town like dogs on a meat wagon make sense because of the nature of the allegations. When the media hears hazing they hear a big news story. Similar stories in the past led the Massachusetts Legislature to enact the Hazing Law, requiring stiff penalties for perpetrators of the crime.

People are angry now because this town hates controversy like no other in the Merrimack Valley. Sweep-it-under-the-rug Wilmington has no problems. We are perfect, thank you very much. Just take your invading cameras back to Boston and feel free to come back in July for our simply dandy Chamber of Commerce strawberry shortcake, thank you kindly.

But for the realistic, silent majority out there, the following should be publicly discussed.

School sports are important. More than that, they're a vital part of a comprehensive public school experience that should instill confidence and self-efficacy in our youth. The gridiron is for teaching character and discipline. It's where respectful camaraderie and lifetime friendships should begin.

Unfortunately, what should be is not. School sports are not as value driven (pardon the Dan Quayle-ism) as they were once were, and that's what we should be talking about. Hazing is just the tip of the iceberg. Young athletes are missing the point of the game when their time at camp — courtesy of your tax dollars — is possibly spent this way.

While the finger is pointing blame, pull out a few more fingers. That's because if the coaches failed a few parents did as well. In fact, the parents are the real failures because they should be held ultimately responsible for their kids' behavior.

If there's good news it's who's handling the school investigation. Paul Fleming is as thorough as they get. Like a real life Columbo, he'll dig up the facts in short order, no stones left unturned.

Then the school committee should take action, pressure from certain groups not withstanding.

Briefly in Politics...

Recruiting a new member for the Wilmington School Committee may be a daunting task given the board's full plate of controversy and an arduous meeting schedule to find a new superintendent. Nonetheless, members of the school committee and board of selectmen convene on October 13 to fill the vacancy created by the sudden resignation of John Demarco.

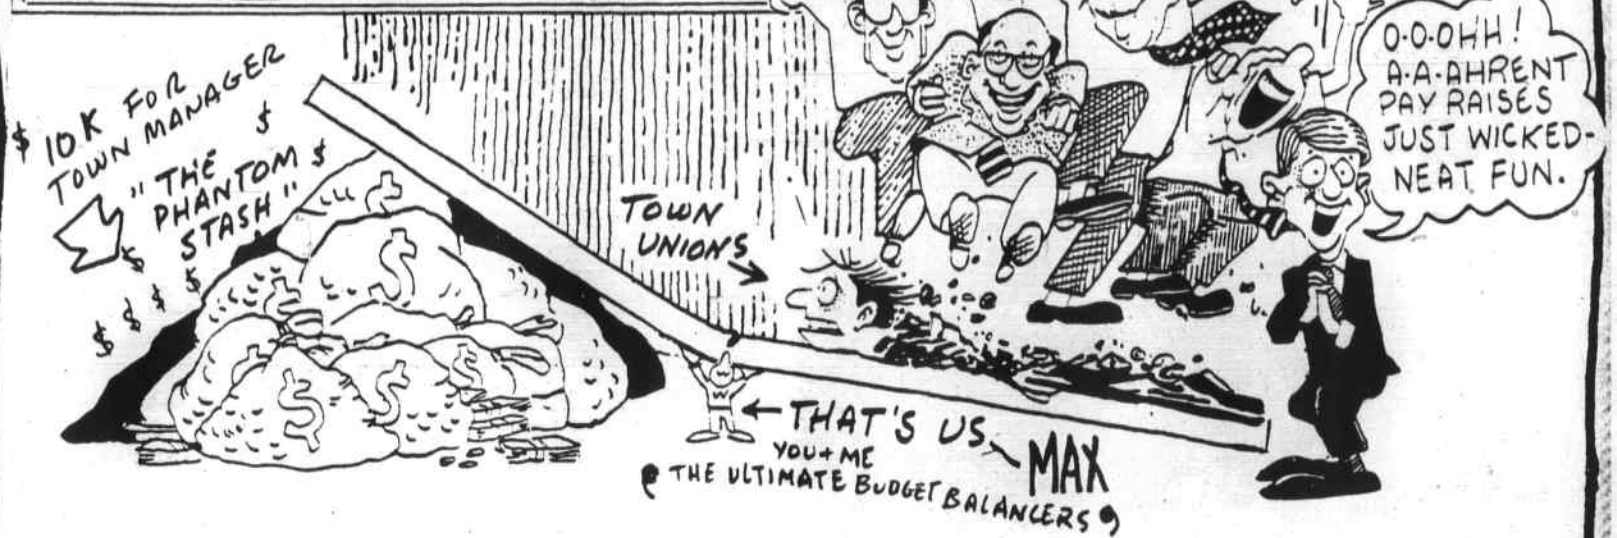

An odds-on-favorite from the start may be a surprise candidate. The Town Crier has learned that key school committee members have approached former finance committee chairman Paul Palizzolo to apply for the appointment. Respected in town for his fiscally conservative views and efforts to combat waste in the municipal budget, Palizzolo has earned kudos for his school budget prowess.

But enter stage left, former board member Aldo Cairra, who may be the legitimate heir apparent having lost to Demarco by a four vote whisker last April.

State Rep. Marianne Brenton (R) will face her Democratic opponent Ted Ferguson in two debate formats. The first is scheduled for October 15, a live cable television debate in Burlington. The second is a League of Women Voters forum to be held October 27 at Bedford High School.

Ferguson is a Burlington selectman and former acting police chief. Brenton is up for her first re-election bid. She defeated Rep. Augie Grace in 1990.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

I am writing to express my concern about the misleading and inaccurate coverage by your newspaper regarding mental health services at Tewksbury Hospital. I am referring to two recent articles by Bill Conlon. In his August 20 article, "Gaebler coming to Tewksbury?" Mr. Conlon quoted a member of my staff, Maureen Drouin, who spoke with him at length by telephone. During the course of the interview, she clearly stated that, although a final decision regarding closure had not been made, if Gaebler were to close, it would have no impact on the Tewksbury campus and that Tewksbury Hospital would not be used to replace the services of the Gaebler Center. Mr. Conlon chose not to include that statement in his article. He chose, instead, to promote further, unnecessary, speculation regarding this issue and concluded with this statement: "Again, there is only a possibility that the Gaebler Center may move to the Tewksbury Hospital. Nothing official has been said by the state's Department of Mental Health." That statement was false and the article unfair.

In his coverage of a recent fire on one of the Hathorne Units at Tewksbury Hospital, Mr. Conlon made no attempt to speak to any DMH staff in order to find out what happened and how it was handled. He chose, instead, to rely upon what local officials had to say, as well as unnamed "hospital employees" who may or may not have observed or understood the actions of our staff.

The result? Numerous statements which are inaccurate and potentially damaging to our efforts to educate the community about our client population. For example, he stated that: "All the patients' rooms were locked, and each room had to be unlocked to get the patients out." This is false. We do not lock clients into their rooms, not that night or ever, and there was no access problem regarding their evacuation. Mr. Conlon claimed that "a medication cart was taken to the dining hall to sedate the more unruly patients..." This is also false, as well as stigmatizing. The medication cart was taken over because it was 8:00 P.M. and time for their evening medication. There were no incidents, no need for medication or other restraint because no one was "unruly." The staff and Tewksbury Hospital responded in an alert and professional manner to safely escort patients away from the fire without casualty. Moreover, a Hathorne Unit nurse and a security guard fought the blaze to prevent further damage and risk to patients. In fact, local officials commended DMH staff for their handling of the incident. Once again, that information was missing from this article.

At no time did any patients escape during the transfer between the hospital and dining area. Patients requiring close supervision were closely monitored by staff, as well as periodic "headcounts" being made.

The issue of not having enough manpower for driving the Tewksbury ladder truck is not the fault of the patients and staff at Tewksbury Hospital. Nor are we responsible for the limited resources of the Police Department. Staff and patients of the Hathorne Units at Tewksbury Hospital deserve the same response and manpower the town would provide to any citizen in a life threatening situation.

Rather than ridicule the incident, wouldn't it have been more constructive to praise the "heroes" of the event and elicit community support for the "sufferers" of such a tragic event.

The Department of Mental Health acknowledges differences of opinion between DMH and local officials on a variety of issues. We will however, continue our efforts to work constructively with town officials and town residents to promote a better understanding and acceptance of persons with mental illness. It is discouraging to realize that we must also fight for balanced, fair and accurate reporting by the local media.

Sincerely,
James Q. Purdy

Dear Larz:

The actions of the two school committee members in the football hazing incident are as incorrect as the alleged actions of a few football players. The job of the school committee is to provide positive guidance and direction to the school system and not to air the school's dirty laundry throughout the state. The two school committee members involved have given interviews on television, radio and several newspapers. They may have a vendetta against the athletic director and/or school superintendent, but the people who are getting hurt are the vast majority of football players who did nothing more than attend football camp and play a game they enjoy.

A lot of people in this town enjoy football and appreciate the efforts of Mr. Gillis, Mr. Harrison and the staff. As a parent of a football player I think it's time these two school committee members put the students first and their own political agenda second.

Paul J. Catanzano

Dear Larz:

While I was reading your article on the Rotary Park, in last week's paper, I became very disturbed that there was no mention of some of the people who worked very hard to get the park looking the way it is now. I think it was more than just "elbow grease" that got the park looking as it does today.

I know a lot of people were involved in this project and hope that everyone will get the credit they deserve.

People like Jack Cushing. Jack was there every day, rain or shine, cold weather or hot, day and night. Mr. Whitney and his family and Steven Wright to name a few more.

I strongly think without these extra special people, this park would not have gotten off the ground or turned out as well.

I believe that the people of Wilmington should go out of their way to thank these special people and all the others who were involved.

Thank you,
Brian Anderson

The September 29, 1982 edition of the Town Crier of Tewksbury noted that:

After hearing concerns of residents of the Pine and Pond Street area, selectmen voted 4-1 to decide on October 19 whether or not to renew a liquor license for DAV Hall.

Town meeting voters trimmed 15 department budgets in order to bring the town budget in under the Proposition 2 1/2 cap. Paul Sullivan observed that talk of an override was not really relevant as voters had already voiced their opinion on 2 1/2 when they voted for it in 1980.

The Wilmington Board of Appeals, scheduled to meet the following Tuesday, would hear a plea designed to possibly save the historic Benjamin Buck House, then scheduled to be razed.

The appeal was at the request of the owners Mr. and Mrs. David Cox. The board, a few weeks earlier granted the Cox' the right to tear down the building and divide the land into three houselots.

The home, oldest in Wilmington dated to 1672 or earlier. The estimated cost of restoration was set by one authority at $30,000.

Polling place to change?

by Arlene Surprenant
A suggestion to close the Wildwood School on Election Day, November 3, was angrily denounced by members of the Wilmington School Committee last week.

Supt. William Fay told committee members since the school is used as a polling place for half the precincts in town, the town clerk asked about the possibility of closing the school for the day. Fay said during past elections there has been a lot of confusion and distractions for the students. There is also a safety issue involved with residents walking freely through the school to get to the polls, he said.

A majority of the committee spoke out against the suggestion.

"It's saying that education is secondary to presidential politics," said Peg Kane.

"We should keep the school for what it's intended to do," added

Brad Jackson.

Dr. Shirley Callan proposed changing the location of the polls instead of closing the school. Others agreed with her suggestion. Chairman Bob Peterson asked the superintendent to find out what the response of the state Department of Education would be. Fay plans to bring in a recommendation or additional information at the committee's next meeting.

Rep. Miceli announces arts grants

Representative James R. Miceli (D-Tewksbury/Wilmington) has announced that Tewksbury and Wilmington will receive over $11,000 in grant monies as part of the Massachusetts Cultural Council's Local Cultural Council Program formerly known as the Local Arts Lottery Program.

In FY '93, $2,160,000 will be distributed across the Commonwealth to local councils based on a formula that takes into account population and equalized property value.

Tewksbury will receive an allocation of $7,625 and Wilmington will receive $3,451 to be distributed by the local cultural council. The local cultural councils meet to review grant applications based on criteria developed by each community's local council and guidelines set by the Massachusetts Cultural Council.

The deadline for grant applications to be submitted to local cultural councils is October 15, 1992.

Anyone interested in obtaining more information on the local cultural council is encouraged to call Rep. Miceli at (617) 722-2745 or the Mass. Cultural Council at (617) 727-3668.

Being a dealer for a major manufacturer can be more fun than one might think. Sandy Ford is a John Deere dealer. He sells and lawn tractors, lawn mowers and the necessary accessories and fun. It's a family business, his wife Aurora and four children (ages 12, 9, 6 and 5) all have a part in it. The children love to wash and park the riding tractors outside for display. The tractor that "needs" the most driving always seems to go first.

Sandy has been amazed a few times by the company that backs him. A few weeks ago a customer came in looking for a part for a 25 year old Deere. Sandy looked it up and "By gosh - it was there!" "We had it shipped in overnight and the machine was running the next day!" When he asked if it was time for a new machine the customer replied, "Nope, it's still workin' fine."

"It's the service," Sandy says. "Making people happy about owning a John Deere." All the products from John Deere carry a 2 year warranty and Sandy insisted on a 2 year warranty from every manufacturer of the side line items he carries. The gas powered line trimmer, the chipper, or any other machine is covered for 2 years! He also boasts of the 30 day money back policy. If you're not satisfied with your John Deere, bring it back for a refund or replacement. No hassle.

Just for fun they carry toys. Model tractors and trucks and all. Some your kids can ride and some that need a push and some you won't let them touch. John Deere makes a "Precision Classics" line of detailed antique replicas which sell for $150.00 new. Collectors snatch them up fast. The only one Sandy has in stock right now is a 1936 Model A John

Mancini's Family Restaurant, 212 Main St., Wilmington 657-4600

Jim Meehan and Dan Turcotte in their dining room

Starting as a small fast food type restaurant in the late 60's, Mancini's has grown tremendously, and has now built a new restaurant which seats over 100 people. But as much as things change some things never do.

Mancini's is still famous for their chicken and jo-jos potatoes. Dan Turcotte and Jim Meehan are still there and their friendly home style atmosphere still fills the air.

But in growing Mancini's has done more than just add more seats. They have a full menu with most anything you could want. There is now liquor service available, with full bar, wine and beer. For lunch Mancini's usually offer 4 or 5 specials starting at about $3.99. Dinner specials start at $5.99 and usually number 3 or 4. Specials may be a regular menu item or if Dan or Jim get creative a new item may appear.

Some customers may notice famous faces as they dine. Not portraits on the wall, but live Boston Bruins stars are known to frequent Mancini's. If you are planning to watch a Bruin's practice session at the arena it's a good idea to stop by for some take out at Mancini's first. Just call 657-4600. In ten minutes or so your order will be ready. The full menu is available for take out.

Road plans

Engineer Don Cook shows a sketch of the plans for the intersection of Main and Clark streets. The plans have been prepared in a preliminary study for road improvements to Route 38 between Middlesex Avenue and the Tewksbury line. No time frame has been set.

Chamber reviews plans for Rt.38

by Capt. Larz Neilson
Plans for the widening of Main Street (Route 38) were shown and discussed Tuesday morning to members of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, at a breakfast at Rocco's Restaurant.

The plans are to widen Main Street by six feet, in the area between the Wilmington Plaza and the former site of Wilmington Ford, and at the same time to change the entrance to the Plaza from two entrances to one.

Michael Matt of the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority was introduced by President Ray Forrest of the Chamber of Commerce. The idea of the planning, Matt told his listeners, is to "get as much of the traffic as possible off the side streets and onto Route 38."

Engineer Don Cook of the firm of Fay, Spofford and Thorndike (FS&T) told how the studies have been divided into two sections, with Rocco's Restaurant being the dividing point between the sections.

The southerly section of the planning is from Middlesex Avenue to Rocco's. It was this section which was discussed. The northerly section is from Rocco's to the Tewksbury line.

FS&T, according to Matt has come up with the "least expensive conception of the southerly part." The plan has already been shown to the Board of Selectmen. That board added the idea of having a sidewalk on each side of Main Street, near the Wilmington Plaza.

Cook told the audience that the projections are "up to the year 2010." He spoke of the present "conditions" on Main Street.

The engineers are proposing to keep Middlesex Avenue "as is," where most of the problems concern automobiles which are to "turn left."

Clark Street at Washington Avenue will be "somewhat" widened, and the meeting with Main Street will be "signalized."

The conception is to widen Main Street by six feet. The land will be taken from Wilmington Plaza and the former property of Wilmington Ford.

Route 38, today has a daily traffic of 22,000 vehicles.

The planning is to widen the street so that there will be two lanes for traffic, in each direction. The cost of the project will be about $1,300,000.

"Under the best conditions if we start the design today the plans will not be ready for a year. Then add another six months."

Two comments were made after the presentation.

Rocco DePasquale spoke of a two foot lane of grass, going south from Bridge Lane. He hoped it could be taken, to make the street wider.

State Sen. Robert Buell expressed a hope that there could be a "fifth lane."

Fay, Spofford & Thorndike plans to make the presentation to other Wilmington audiences.

CARBONE: Richard, first child to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Carbone of Fennett Drive, Hudson, N.H. September 23 at Winchester Hospital.

Grandparents include Mr. and Mrs. Indelicato of Arizona and Robert and Judy Carbone of Salem Street, Wilmington.

I knew it was a great hospital, not by the amount of time I spent there, but by the amount of time I didn't.

Joan Maglio came to New England Memorial Hospital to undergo a gynecological procedure that would treat her barely detectable but dangerous precancerous lesion. She was surprised and pleased at how quickly she was able to leave the hospital and return home.

While Joan's procedure was major, it was not surgery in the conventional sense of the word. Her hysterectomy was done vaginally with the aid of advanced laparoscopic techniques. Dr. Daniel Feinn, Joan's skilled gynecological surgeon, successfully performed the exacting procedure with no large incisions, no post-operative complications, and little, if any, pain. Joan was up and around in two days, and back to herself in no time.

Joan Maglio speaks very highly of the excellent treatment she received from the caring, concerned staff at New England Memorial Hospital. But, thanks to Dr. Feinn, she didn't have much time to get used to it.

Health grant to help students

by Arlene Surprenant
The Wilmington School System has received a $30,000 health education grant which will address the social, physical, and emotional well being of students in grades six through eight.
According to teachers Dick DeRosa and Laura Stinson, they will apply for similar grants in the next two years. Those grants will be earmarked for grades K through five and nine through twelve.
The current grant awarded by the state Department of Education will go towards supplies and updated textbooks for health classes, substitute teachers to allow regular teachers to attend conferences to keep current on health topics, in-service courses for science and physical education teachers, and a community newsletter to keep parents informed on student health issues.
"It's a very aggressive grant," DeRosa told the school committee last week. He added that it will allow the system to address more serious issues like the HIV virus.

Gotcha! Well-known "felons" Eleanor Corey, Liz Carey and Harry Patterson were put behind bars at last year's Homecoming Weekend and held in the Explorer Post "jail cell" until benefactors paid their bail.

Homecoming changes

There are a few changes to this year's Homecoming Weekend event at Livingston Street park. Some old stand-bys are gone, but there are a few new items of interest.

Gone for this year is the Meadow Muffins "Big Bucks Bingo" game, in which an incontinent cow picked the winner.

New for '92 is an antique-classic-street-rod car rally, with dozens or even hundreds (if rumors are true) vehicles on the grass on Sunday, October 4. Also on Saturday and Sunday there will be a free display of antique steam engines.

Gone this year is the Fireman's Muster.

New this year is karaoke, Japan's favorite nightclub sport, in which you become the singing star. There is karaoke scheduled for Friday night, 5:30 to 7 p.m., by Carl Magnuson; and again on Sunday, 4:30 to 7:30 p.m., with DJ Ed Dorazio.

On Saturday morning, attention is shifted to the corner of South Street and Main Street, for the unveiling of Mico Kaufman's latest work, at 10 a.m. Breakfast will be served at the United Methodist Church (right across the street) at 8:15 a.m., with the fire department's Muster Team.

Back at Livingston Street, there will be volleyball nets available for those interested. No official games are scheduled, but the resurgence in interest in volleyball guarantees the nets will find some use.

The RE/MAX hot air balloon will again grace the skies over Livingston Street on Saturday afternoon, as sponsored by RE/MAX Hearthstone in Tewksbury.

Tewksbury Rotary Club offers up fried dough and tonic, same as last year, but this year the club will also sell sausage sandwiches and frozen fruit ices.

Voter registration, too!

Along with the food and rides, the softball games and karaoke, there is a civic duty being offered at Homecoming Weekend.

A Voter Registration station will be set up at Livingston Street park on Saturday, October 3, from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Potential voters may register to vote, check on their registration or change their party affiliation at the park. Voters who fail to return the town census form are taken off the voter registration list, so checking the voter list is advisable if you plan to vote in November.

The deadline to register in order to vote in the Presidential election in November, is October 6. Voter registration will be held that day at town hall, from 8:30 p.m. until 10 p.m., and from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Trahan School.

In an advertisement last week in the Town Crier, it was incorrectly stated that the voter registration at Livingston Street park would run until 10 p.m. Not so. Voter sign-ups will be taken at the park only until 1:30 p.m., but registrations will be accepted at the town hall on October 3 until 5 p.m.

Jail Day at Homecoming

Ever wanted to have your hubby arrested for making a mess out of the bathroom and leaving it, or see your neighbor put behind bars for cutting the lawn early on Sunday?

Well, here's your chance.

The Tewksbury police Explorers will hold their second annual Jail Day at Homecoming Weekend. For a mere dollar, you can have anyone arrested at Livingston Street park, on any charge, or $2 if the arrest is made at a home or business within Tewksbury. Warrants are available at the Tewksbury police station.

Explorers will take the criminals into custody and haul them to a cage at Livingston Street park. For a reasonable bail the perpetrators can go free, or take a cream pie in the kisser as punishment. Hmmm.

The Town Crier will be attending Tewksbury Homecoming Weekend, in more ways than one.

Town Crier ad manager Stu Neilson will be strolling around Livingston Street park, dressed as a town crier and ringing a bell, to announce coming events at Homecoming and handing out samples of this paper.

Tewksbury editor Bill Conlon, on the other hand, will be at the park nearly all weekend. As president of Tewksbury Rotary Club, Bill will be cracking the whip at the Rotary Club booth, along with covering the event for the newspaper. Long weekend ahead.

Sewer Fund options still under review by town

by Arlene Surprenant

Tapping into the state's Revolving Fund Program; use of betterments; or having the town share the cost of sewer lines with abutters, who could have a ceiling placed on their portion of the bill were three sewer funding options presented to Wilmington selectmen Monday night. The three options were mentioned in an update by the Sewer Finance Advisory Board.

Board Chairman George Allan explained that his group was still looking at equitable ways to share the cost of future sewer projects in Wilmington. A public meeting is being planned for this fall to allow for more citizen input into that discussion.

The sewer board was formed following the defeat of the Northeast Interceptor Sewer Project at the last town meeting. In their meetings, board members discussed potential funding mechanisms, they explored how other towns have dealt with the problem, and they sent out 6,000 surveys to local homeowners seeking their views on sewers. Of that total, 1,468 surveys were returned, said Allan.

A majority of survey respondents favored a combination of funding methods, including paying betterments and paying for sewers out of either the tax rate or the water and sewer rates. The majority of those who responded said they would be willing to pay the least amount on the survey or $500 to fund future projects. Only 25 people said they would pay the survey maximum of $5,000. Surprisingly, a majority of the respondents preferred sewers leading Allan to note that "there is interest out there."

Allan told selectmen whatever option is finally adopted by the town will have to be feasible. There is over one billion dollars set aside for the Revolving Fund Program, for instance, but the Weld Administration has yet to fund the low interest loan program, said Allan.

The chairman informed selectmen, while there are 20 miles of sewer line and about 600 users in town, 86 miles remain to be sewered in Wilmington. The estimated cost of that job a few years ago was $70 million, Allan said. In the past, federal and state government paid for 90 percent of sewer projects. Today, however, abutters pay up to 50 percent of the cost in betterments and the town picks up the rest. One possible solution, said Allan, would be to only sewer areas of town which are critical to the water supply.

Selectman Chester Bruce was adamantly opposed to the current funding formula. He noted that people are "screaming" and "losing their homes" because of the high cost.

"The homeowner does not have the money," he maintained, speaking especially for residents on a fixed income. Some residents, he added, are getting hit not only by betterments but by hookup costs and increasing MWRA and sewer rates as well.

Selectmen Chairman Mark Haldane observed many people want sewer but don't want to pay for it. He asked how you would convince people that the benefits outweigh the costs. Town Manager Michael Caira replied, by spreading the cost to the greatest amount of people.

He added, "at some point the town really needs to make a decision."

The MWRA (Massachusetts Water Resource Authority) came under fire more than once during the evening. Water and Sewer Supt. Paul Niman said residents are "deathly afraid" of the spiraling sewer costs. Water and Sewer Commission Chairman Noel Baratta explained, until the assessment methods change, "Wilmington will be subsidizing other towns and paying excessive costs."

"We're paying for Boston, We're paying for Cambridge. It should be a state-wide thing," Bruce said.

Family project

The Florenza family of Wilmington has been hard at work building a new 400-seat banquet facility at the Casa di Fior on West Street. Al Florenza designed the new hall, which occupies a large portion of the building that once housed his canteen truck business. Daughter Robin and wife Paula put in many long hours on the project as well, including a two-day marathon hanging hundreds of crystal ornaments on the nine chandeliers. The first wedding reception was held in the new hall last week.

Cleanup underway at Woburn's Industriplex site

Construction of the long term solution to contamination problems at the Industriplex Superfund Hazardous Waste Site in Woburn has begun. The Industriplex Remedial Trust, a group of current and former owners of land at the site, have selected Chemical Waste Management, Inc. of Oak Brook, Ill. to perform the cleanup work. The Industriplex Remedial Trust represents 26 parties who reached a legal settlement with EPA to pay for and coordinate site cleanup under EPA and DEP supervision.

Chemical Waste Management, Inc. has completed cleanup work at more than 6000 hazardous waste sites, including 18 sites handled federal Superfund hazardous waste sites. The firm will conduct cleanup work at the Woburn site during the next three years according to a design developed by the Industriplex Remedial Trust and recently approved by EPA and the MA DEP. The design will meet the requirements of the 1989 decision by EPA to provide a remedy that will ensure long term protection of public health and the environment at the site.

This first phase of cleanup will reduce risks from potential exposure to contaminated soil, groundwater and wetlands, and will address odor problems that have been associated with one of the piles of hides disposed during former site operations.

Contaminated soil areas that have been determined to present a public health threat will be covered with a cap of clean soil and man made layers to prevent physical contact. The cleanup contractor will also dredge a contaminated wetland area and create a new wetland area to enhance existing wildlife habitat. EPA will impose institutional controls at the site, such as deed restrictions, to assure that future land use will not pose risks from disturbance of contaminants or capped areas.

The Industriplex Remedial Trust is working with Woburn Police and community leaders to discuss ways to minimize the potential adverse impact of cleanup related trucking on local traffic patterns. A public meeting will be announced for early this fall to discuss the cleanup and respond to community questions.

The Industriplex site has been the location of industrial operations including chemical manufacturing and disposal since the 1850s. The site covers about 245 acres one mile northwest of the intersection of Routes 93 and 95. It is currently a mixture of undeveloped land and properties developed as an industrial park. The major sources of contamination are lead, arsenic and chromium in soil, emissions of hydrogen sulfide gas from buried animal hide waste, and benzene and toluene in groundwater. Groundwater on the site is not being used for drinking water.

Volunteer for the environment

Are you concerned about the environment and willing to help make a difference?

Do you enjoy the outdoors and like working with children? You can share your interest in nature with the decision makers of the future by becoming a volunteer at the Massachusetts Audubon Society's Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary in Topsfield. A new training course begins on November 5, 1992 and meets for 12 Thursday mornings from 9:30 to noon to prepare volunteers to become field guides for school groups visiting the Sanctuary.

Classes will include basic natural history information and field investigations. In addition, you will learn teaching tips and activities to explore the world of nature with small groups of school children. The Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary is 2,800 acres of diverse habitats. By becoming a Field Guide Volunteer you will learn more about this wonderful natural resource and have the opportunity to help school children understand their role in the preservation of our planet.

Our future depends on them! You must be at least 18 years old and willing to donate one weekday morning a week through June. For more information on how you can become a Field Guide Volunteer, call (508) 887-9264 and request a volunteer application packet. It's a great feeling to know that you can make a difference.

backyard gardening

by Hugh Wiberg

It is time to say farewell to one of the strangest gardening seasons in recent memory. (and someone was heard to mutter, "good riddance!")

As poor a year for tomatoes as we have seen, it has been a terrific year for New England's apple crop. The MacIntosh, Macoun and Cortland trees are absolutely loaded out in the Harvard, Groton and Littleton area. Nature tends to compensate each year and our relatively second rate backyard gardens have been counter balanced by the best apple harvest in a quarter century.

Before setting aside all thoughts of this year's gardening successes (rather few) and failures, take an hour or two this weekend to do a thorough tidying up in your flower and vegetable gardens. If you will take the time now to remove all of the insect and disease infested plant refuse before winter arrives, your 1993 garden will be just that much healthier and productive. Bag up the dead residue and set it out on trash day. Don't forget to clean and store away your garden tools in a weatherproof shed or cellar.

I want to thank all of you who contributed to this column in 1992. Reader questions, comments and contributions - yes, and some constructive criticism - were way up, and I have enjoyed the interaction with dozens of Town Crier readers.

Go to the Topsfield Fair this year! The fair starts this Saturday and runs through Columbus Day Monday, October 12. Allow a minimum of two hours to wander through the fairgrounds. The Crier will publish the top 10 New England pumpkins and growers in the issue of October 15. With a little luck, George Brooks of Tewksbury (last year's winner) and yours truly will be somewhere in this group.

See you in the spring!

THE BIG BANG THEORY

By Maz Quinto

One of the current trends in hair styling has been around for sometime. Yet, it is being recognized now as a way to make a hair change that is quick and flattering. In short, bangs are back. To utilize them successfully, beauty technicals point out that it is important to make them work with hair length and texture. Those women who are sporting chin to shoulder length bobs may want to opt for heavy, above the brow bangs. As for women who wear their hair longer than shoulder length or short and layered, bangs are best kept to a soft fringe or feathered. Curly hair benefits best from bangs cut in a wispy manner because curly hair does not lend itself to heavy bangs. No matter how your hair is cut, you'll need the right products to keep your new cut looking good and that's where Matrix products come in to the picture. Here at SHAWSHEEN HAIR SALON

we use great beauty products from Matrix® to keep all our clients looking their best - the natural way. For great looks in a great atmosphere, call our friendly salon for an appointment. We're open six days and nights of the week, closed Sunday, and we're conveniently located at 161 Shawsheen Ave., Rt. 129, Wilmington.

Christmas Fair

Plans for the Christmas Fair are moving along very well. Many excellent articles are under construction. We have some beautiful mittens coming in, but many more will be needed as we face a very cold winter.

Chance books

The chance book tickets have been printed again this year through the generous gift of Arthur Spellenberg of Hampshire Press. How can you say thank you to a person like Arthur who, no matter how busy he is, never seems too busy to help the Wilmington seniors. He has been our friend donating his time and supplies for many years, printing brochures, get well cards and chance tickets, and all we can give him is our grateful thanks. It is hoped that every senior takes at least one chance book and one more to sell to family or friends.

There are 10 chances, seven are money prizes donated by seniors and the others are excellent prizes donated by seniors. Remember the money earned through the hard work of all of us will pay for the Christmas Open House party at the center, the July therapeutic social, machines and material used in the programs as well as appliances for the center.

Less than 10 cents a week

All of these mentioned are not covered under the department budget. To continue contributing our portion of the expenses of the center, it will take all off us working together. Come in and ask Mary for a book of chances, it is only $5; less than 10 cents a week.

Shop class resumed

The shop class is the only class canceled during the summer months. It is instructed by a very talented woodworker, Joe Filipowicz. He spends his summers in Vermont. He volunteers his services there also. Now he is back in Wilmington and has resumed his woodworking class to the delight of his students.

If you have ever wanted to learn how to make those beautiful woodcraft articles you see in the craft shops, Joe is the person to see. His class is held in the Buzzell Senior Citizen Center every Thursday from 9 to noon.

Congressman Mavroules

Congressman Mavroules has been setting up panels of representatives from government agencies working on programs that serve the senior citizens throughout his district. Now that we are attached to that district the panel is being set up in our center this year. It will be held Monday, Oct. 5 from 1 to 2 p.m. The panel will be answering questions from us on Social Security payments, Medicare what it is covering etc., balance billing, Medicare assignments by a representative from Social Security, insurance representatives from Blue Cross and HMOs, lawyers on the Health Care Proxy Law and the Homestead Act.

Others as well

Other questions on nursing homes, in-home care and long term care will be answered. This is not a political panel. The panelists are all employees of the agencies that serve the elderly. They have been invited to answer questions. I know all of us have many questions regarding these agencies we want answered. This is your opportunity to ask them. I have been told if you have a personal question you want answered in private after the session is completed, any member of the panel will be glad to answer it.

Great chance

A chance like this does not come along too often, so seniors are urged to take advantage of it. I attended a panel similar to this at the Federal Reserve Bank in Boston and it was very difficult to find a seat it was so crowded. We have plenty of chairs to seat you in the function room. Write your questions down and don't be afraid to ask them. Many times we can go to these agencies and wait hours to see a person who can answer our questions. See you next Monday at 1 p.m.

Political vendetta, rumors cloud hazing incident

Sorry all you rumor mongers and gossip gofers in Wilmington. Unfortunately for you, I'm not calling for a mass lynching on the Wilmington Town Common after hearing the various 'reports' concerning the alleged hazing at the Wilmington High School Freedom, New Hampshire football camp last month.

Ten years ago I reported that a similar incident had occurred at the Wilmington High School football summer camp. At that time I thought and wrote that if this type of thing went on up there, then the team should not travel to an out-of-state camp, but should stay at home to conduct its' preseason workouts. I think that this should be the verdict after this most recent incident is investigated. Simply, no more camps. Chelmsford and many other schools across the state stay at home and do just fine. Wilmington should do the same and avoid further late summer problems.

I have no doubt that something occurred in Freedom, New Hampshire. But the sleaze and ugliness was not in some locker room or football camp in New Hampshire. It was right here in Wilmington, where some person or persons have chosen this incident to help further a vendetta against Superintendent of Schools Bill Fay, Director of Physical Education Jim Gillis and head football coach Eddie Harrison and his staff.

This incident supposedly took place almost a month ago, but just last week with Harrison set to be hired as a teacher in the Wilmington School System, the story broke big time. Phone calls were made to the Boston Globe, Boston Herald, Lowell Sun and all three Boston television stations. A call was made to this office. I heard a report on a Boston FM radio station of "bizarre sex acts" at the Wilmington High School football camp. The media feeding frenzy was on, and I wanted to vomit. Whomever wanted to use this issue as an explosion to blow certain people out of the water had gotten just what they wanted. But they won't use me to take pot shots at people that I know and respect.

I've known Eddie Harrison and the people on the Wilmington High School football coaching staff for 20 years, and I'd wager a month's salary that Harrison and his staff knew nothing of the alleged hazing. The argument is always made that the staff should have known. After the fact, perhaps, but anyone who thinks that a coaching staff can police a group of young men 24 hours a day is kidding themselves. At some point these young people and their parents must accept some responsibility for code of conduct, be it at home or in the woods of New Hampshire.

Certain members of the school committee set the tone: Let's get Bill Fay and anyone who is friends with him out of town-now. Those people got Fay, and he should feel blessed that soon he'll be boarding the next bus out of town, because those same people are fully prepared to put a quality person like Eddie Harrison through the wringer.

But I really think there should be a voice of reason here. The main source in many of these Boston newspaper stories has been quoted extensively with a bucketful of non-facts that don't back up a thing. If you weren't at that camp 10 years ago, or three weeks ago for that matter, anything that you say is hearsay that can only hurt innocent people. Bingo. Let's use this incident as the perfect sledge hammer and whack a few people over the head with it to serve our own political purposes. Wonderful. Just wonderful.

Then there is the issue of the media who took this chum-bucket full of rotten bait and went with it, full steam ahead without ever thinking to ask just where this source was coming from. When someone from Wilmington makes a phone call to the Globe sports desk next time and isn't reporting a score, I'd think about it, boys, before I hung up the phone and got back to figuring out just what's wrong with the Patriots.

I'm not going to take the bait on this one.

BEFORE worn brakes cramp your style...

Show your car you care.

Unfortunately, worn brakes don't always announce themselves. They just sort of creep up on you. Oh, sure, your brakes may squeak or pull or grab. But mostly they wear out so gradually you don't realize anything is wrong. But, by having your mechanic regularly check your brakes twice a year, you can help keep them from letting you go too far.

Same goes for the rest of your car. It needs you to keep it up, so it won't let you down. And this is what regular car care is all about.

A job to do

Wilmington High School coaches Ed Harrison, Jim Tildsley and Tom Woods are trying to do their jobs in the wake of the most recent WHS football hazing controversy.

College Corner

Martinello stars for Providence field hockey

Wilmington's Gina Martinello, goalie for the Lady Friars field hockey team, has been selected Providence College's Athlete of the Week for her superior goaltending in PC's hard fought loss to the University of Mass., 1-0 and a comeback win over Villanova, 2-1. Gina registered 25 saves against UMass, including two diving saves which kept PC in the game for the first 10 minutes.

"Gina had at least four big saves in those first 10 minutes. If it hadn't been for her, we could have easily lost 5-0," explained head coach Jackie Gladu-Barto. Martiniello, a two sport athlete at Providence, agreed that the UMass game had been one of her best. "It was very intense the entire game," she said. "We played well as a team, but they were really on fire. They had that spark that we were missing. But I was feeling pretty confident. Racking up all those saves very rarely happens at this level of competition, and it reminded me a lot of high school."

A native of Wilmington, Martinello was an outstanding leader at WHS. An all-star field hockey player for three years, she also lettered in basketball and softball. Treasurer of her senior class, Gina earned recognition in the National Honor Society. The PC community was not surprised to see how well Gina has balanced her life as a student-athlete. Not only does she shine on the field, Martiniello also minds the cage for the Lady Friars ice hockey team in the winter.

"Sure, sports take a lot of my time and sometimes limits my social life, but I'd rather be playing on the ice or the field and keeping in shape. I've always been very active and it keeps me focused. There's a lot to think about in college, my classes, my games, and the future. I basically just play and study, and that's what makes me happy," she enthuses.

Gina, an accounting major at Providence, has taken full advantage of the opportunities afforded to her at Providence College. Her coach is quick to point out, "Gina told me she was good enough to play with the best, and she has really proven herself. Her teammates have tremendous confidence in her, and I think their faith has given her a lot of confidence in herself. Her stats from last week say it all. If any one player stood out on that field, for either Providence or UMass, it was Gina."

The Lady Friars are looking to continue their 3-1 season with the same success that has propelled them this far. After last year's sweep of the Big East Championships, Gina Martiniello and the rest of the field hockey brigade are all fired up to continue their reign.

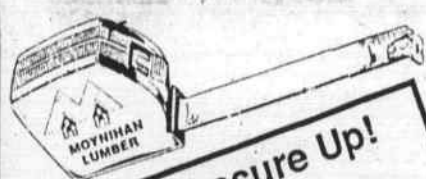

"Coming off the UMass loss, we really pulled it together as a team. Offense and defense clicked and we came from behind to defeat Villanova in a very exciting game," Gina says. "I'm working as hard as I can, and I'm very confident in the way I've performed so far. Right now, I'm just taking things one game at a time and doing the best I can. I always knew if I kept it up, I could be just as good a goalie as any Division I player."

At Providence College last week, Gina Martiniello hushed her critics with a tremendous show of strength and ability, proving once and for all that she is, indeed, one of the best.

ARE YOU PROTECTED?

by Edward H. Wilkens

PARTNERSHIP PROTECTION

QUESTION: What are the alternatives if one business partner dies without business life insurance?

ANSWER: You could buy your partner's interest and continue the business. But what would the heirs consider a fair price?

You could sell the business and share the proceeds with the heirs. This means a forced sale, possibly at a loss.

You could form a new partnership with a member of your partner's family — but their ideas may differ from yours.

Wouldn't it be easier to have a pre-arranged buy-sell agreement for a specified amount and a special insurance fund in order to make the agreement work?

IF YOUR PARTNER DIES and you don't have insurance, all the alternatives are bad.

The Great Moose Hunt- Part Two

by Bill Conlon
Last week, we discussed a moose that ran through Dracut the Sunday before. This time, we'll talk about what went wrong. I think an awful lot of things went wrong here.

The moose was first seen in the afternoon in Dracut, and it walked all over town. I first saw the beast just before 8 p.m., when a Dracut cruiser chased it past my house. State Environmental Police Officer Joe Paolilli was following.

Shortly before 9 p.m., the moose was holed up behind a building just a few yards away from Lakeview Avenue, perhaps Dracut's busiest street. The guys with the dart guns hadn't arrived yet, the Dracut cops were at a loss, and eventually the moose bolted, through a crowd of spectators, onto Lakeview Avenue, and back through local yards. Pure chance that nobody was trampled or no car hit the critter.

Later, the moose holed up again, this time in a cellar excavation on Sladen Street in Dracut, virtually in my back yard. And here's where I have some serious objections to the state's handling of the incident.

The immobilization team finally showed up, and refused to dart the moose until daylight. They refused to kill the moose as well, according to a ranking Environmental Police Officer on the scene. Direct orders from the commish, he said.

So, the moose stayed in the hole until the Dracut cop went off duty, and the beast scrambled up out of the hole and disappeared.

Rob Deblinger, assistant director at the Division of Fisheries & Wildlife, said he was on the scene. The moose wasn't tranked in the cellar hole, he said, because there was no way to follow it in the dark during the 20 minutes or so that it takes for the tranquilizer drug to take effect.

Deblinger said wildlife officials lost track of the moose when it left the cellar hole, and didn't know its whereabouts until next morning. But the moose spent the night on the loose. It didn't bed down at all.

Mike Ledoux, who writes for the weekly Merrimack Journal, said he followed the moose through parts of Lowell and Dracut well into the morning. At one point, Mike said, Lowell's finest deliberately scared the moose out of a parking lot with sirens, while over a hundred people watched, and the 800-pound traffic hazard bolted across the busy VFW Highway (Route 110) in Lowell and walked along that road for about a half mile. Pure chance that no cars crossed its path.

Mike reported scattered sightings of the moose in Lowell and Dracut in the wee hours, and a Dracut firefighter said he saw the beast walk by the firehouse around 5 a.m. The firehouse is on Route 113.

The young bull was finally caught off Hildreth Street in Dracut early that morning, tranquilized with two darts, and hauled away by truck.

Director Deblinger said the dart gun fires a 5cc syringe, and 10ccs are needed to put down a moose of that size, hence the two darts. He added that the moose was taken to a point near the New Hampshire state line, in hopes the moose wanders to the Granite state.

But my objection traces back to the cellar hole.

The moose was cornered in that hole for more than three hours by Dracut police. The state refused to dart the moose, and refused to kill it on the grounds that public safety wasn't jeopardized by its presence.

Like hell. The VFW Highway in Lowell is a busy road. So is Lakeview Avenue and Route 113, both in Dracut. The area has no room for moose, and Deblinger agrees.

"Massachusetts is just incompatible with moose," he said. The state has some six million people in five million acres of land, making it too tight for thousand-pound moose to be running around.

When the moose was cornered in back of the building near Lakeview Avenue, the Dracut police should have taken the initiative and shot it down. The state wouldn't. Instead, it charged onto a busy street.

When the moose was cornered in the cellar hole, a perfect backstop for a shotgun slug, again Dracut should have taken charge. Instead, the bull wound up on an even busier road than before!

Earlier that same day, state police recommended killing a young bull moose, in Amesbury, declaring that it posed a danger to public safety. Deblinger said the moose in Amesbury had been hit by a truck, and it refused to cross the busy street it was trying to cross when it was hit.

Obviously, moose don't pose any danger to the public until AFTER they are hit by vehicular traffic. A moose WALKING in traffic isn't a danger to anybody now, is it?

Or does everyone see Bullwinkle instead of a walking disaster area?

Wish I could sit down to a moose steak about now.

Wilmington Youth Hockey

Mite A's start fast

Wilmington's Mite A's opened the season with an impressive win over Newburyport in their first game of the 1992-1993 season.

Anthony Tomasi ended the first period with an unassisted goal with 36 seconds remaining in the period to give Wilmington the lead.

Jonathan Robarge slid a pass from Matt Collins past the goalie to give Wilmington a 2-0 lead. Newburyport responded with a goal two minutes later, making it a 2-1 game.

Mike Montalto answered with a goal off a pass from Justin Brady, followed by an unassisted goal from Brian Martinello topping off a rush from center ice, giving Wilmington a 4-1 lead at the end of the second period.

Newburyport scored first in the third period, narrowing the margin to 4-2.

Casey Duggan quickly responded with an unassisted goal 45 seconds later as he beat the goalie with a wrist shot.

The defense of Andrew Campbell, Derek Clayton, Brian Corcoran, and Brian Martinello held off Newburyport.

Pat Cushing, Brian Velardo and Jason Loring also had fine games.

Goalkeeper Jim McGonagle came up with some key saves to shutdown the Newburyport attack.

Subs hit WWII merchant seamen hard

by Capt. Larz Neilson
 The men who were serving in U.S. merchant ships along the east coast of the United States had an early taste of submarine warfare, shortly after January 1, 1942. Over 800 seamen lost their lives in the period between mid-January and May 1942. Post War figures put the loss of lives of American merchant seamen as being about 10,000, in that war.

There were too few ships in the US Navy to adequately protect the Atlantic coast of the United States. Many Navy ships were wartime loans to Great Britain. Many others were serving in the Pacific.

Ships in the coastwise trade, on the US Atlantic coast continued to sail as they had been doing in peacetime. The commanding officers of the German submarines had some "easy hunting."

This writer was the chief mate of an American freighter which transited the Panama Canal in early January 1942. The ship then spent some months in the Pacific. It again transited the Canal in early July 1942 to return to the east coast, a place which the German submarines by that time had left.

But only a few hours after leaving Panama the ship was rescuing seamen from a torpedoed ship, and taking those men back to Panama. The German submarines were no longer off the American coast but were busy in the Caribbean Sea.

The writer was later transferred from the ship on which he had been serving. In October he was in New York City, being an assistant to the Port Captain of the company for which he had been working for a dozen years.

Obviously, even though nothing was said, the writer was being held in a shore job in case there was a sudden need for another ship's captain. Meanwhile his job was to travel around New York, checking out the work being done on ships under control of the company.

In New York the writer had to visit ships being operated by the company, in many parts of New York harbor, and across the river in New Jersey. If nothing else, as he traveled around, he got to learn about the New York subways.

One job, which occurred every now and then, was to load sand into empty ships.

Each of the ships had large cargo spaces, called cargo holds. Some, a few ships, would carry 8,000 tons, in those holds. Others could carry 14,000 tons.

Empty cargo ships, when struck by a torpedo tended to roll over before they sank. This was because there was no cargo to stop the flow of water.

To launch a lifeboat from a ship which is rolling over is practically impossible. Many lives were lost under those circumstances.

The government thus was led to a conclusion of putting 3,000 tons of sand into the lower holds of every cargo ship. And every now and then the writer would make a trip to the northern part of Manhattan Island, to see that such a cargo vessel was being properly loaded.

Other times the writer would go to a pier where a ship was being loaded to observe, and report. He was not a supervisor, just an observer. If he saw something wrong he reported it to the company. If he didn't, then no comment was needed.

One such job was for a ship which was being loaded for Murmansk. Murmansk was a Russian port, in the most northern part of the Scandinavian Peninsula. The job of loading was being done in Hoboken, N.J.

Norway was occupied territory, the German Army, Navy and Air Force performing that duty. Any ship going to Murmansk, Russia, was exposed to the German forces in Norway, and many were sunk.

There were two Russian officials on the pier in Hoboken, where the SS Puerto Rican was being loaded. They argued with everyone who had anything to do about the loading of that ship. There was absolutely no doubt but that the Puerto Rican was being loaded for the port of Murmansk.

Capt. Ralph Oliver was the master, and LeRoy N. Andrew of Lynn, Mass. was the chief mate. The month was December, 1942.

The day the Puerto Rican sailed, Mr. Andrew, as chief mate, was on the forecabin. He knew he was "expendable." He managed a joke.

"What do you say, Larz? Want to swap jobs?"

The Puerto Rican sailed, with her cargo, for Murmansk. She made a port of call, at Reykjavik, Iceland.

The Puerto Rican left Iceland in Convoy RA 53, for Murmansk. About 100 miles northeast of Iceland the Puerto Rican was torpedoed.

Seas had been breaking over the ship. The lifeboats were frozen into place. Three were useless. Only one could be lowered. There were some cork life rafts.

That solitary lifeboat capsized in the heavy seas. Eight men were able to swim to a cork life raft.

Of the men on that raft only one lived to be rescued. A fireman, he was taken to an Icelandic hospital. There both his feet had to be amputated. So, too, were many of his fingers.

The writer heard of it, many months later. The fireman had returned to New York.

The story of the Puerto Rican is not the tale of most ships, in World War II, but there were many ships which were lost, and many crew members.

Dining room, other services open at Tech

Area residents can purchase pastries, get their hair done, and enjoy an elegant lunch, as they watch education in action at Shawsheen Tech. Services open to the public have resumed for the school year.

Appointments are now being accepted at the school's Cosmetology Clinic, which operates as a full service beauty salon. Haircuts, permanent waves, coloring, manicures and scalp treatments are offered by juniors and seniors in the Cosmetology program. Call the school for an appointment between 8 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Across the hall from Cosmetology wafts the aroma of baked goods, as Culinary Arts students prepare daily an ambitious array of breads, rolls, pastries, pies, doughnuts, muffins and bagels. The bakery is open from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. on school days. Although the bakery operates on a walk-in basis, advance orders will be accepted from community and non-profit groups in Shawsheen District communities. Chef-instructor Joe Clain said later in the year, there will be some new offerings, including tortes and key lime pie.

The Ram's Head Dining Room, a table service restaurant offering a selection of appetizers, main courses and desserts, is now open to the public, with luncheon seatings at 11:30 a.m. and 12:15 p.m. Students studying to become chefs, bakers, and restaurant managers prepare and serve food to customers. They also prepare, package and sell individual frozen dinners as part of their training in convenience foods. These items may be ordered in the dining room.

Chef-instructor Al Mazman said the popular International Days, started in 1990, will continue, beginning with French days at the end of September. Same day lunch reservations can be made by calling the school at 9:30 a.m.

Community projects

Letters have been sent to the five Shawsheen District towns through the board of selectmen or town administrator, indicating that Shawsheen can consider construction or remodeling projects for the communities, noted Anthony R. Bazzinotti, Director of Vocational Technical Programs. "These projects would provide an extension of classroom instruction and give students hands on construction experience," said Bazzinotti. He added that the school is seeking projects that would assist students without displacing any town employees.

The Diesel/Heavy Equipment Department also is considering proposals for the maintenance and repair of town owned vehicles or construction equipment. Those interested in these projects should contact Bazzinotti at Shawsheen Tech.

A one person entourage

By DOUGLAS WOOD-BOYLE

Bernice Doherty calls her avocation a therapy but for many others, especially those in various area nursing homes, the singer/comedian's one-woman show is a lot of good, clean, entertaining fun.

Doherty is a performer with an outgoing style and is very forthright in her comments on life. However, she remembers being a shy teenager who went into Everett High School never wanting to sing again. This was after years of being put into various school shows by the Sisters that taught at St. Joseph's School in Everett.

Throughout high school and after graduation Doherty was happy working as a secretary. That spirit continued as she married and became the mother of three living in Melrose.

"I thought people had to be beautiful to be singers so I shied away from it," Doherty said.

About 12-years ago Doherty's brother-in-law passed away at a young age and she realized that it was time to think about where life was taking her.

"I knew I had to do something," Doherty said.

She added now that she has taken the first step "I'm never going to stop. When I retire (from her day job with TASC, a Reading based firm) I'll start auditioning for commercials."

Now Doherty is the type of person that makes her own beauty. She is able to use her face to great advantage in humorous situations and her voice brings out the various facets of beauty in music.

The transformation from secretary/mother to (as her brochure describes) "singer/entertainer with a flair for comedy," started with a trip to Melrose vocal coach Dorothy Shultes.

Shultes informed Doherty that she had a good voice and her range was excellent.

As Doherty recalls, Shultes said, "If you had started when you were younger you could have gone into opera."

Doherty noted, "She gave me a lot of confidence." Because of that confidence, Doherty was able to travel to Reading and join the Colonial Chorus. That group was another ego boost for Doherty, as they urged her to audition more.

The step on the climb was an audition with Melrose's Polymnia Chorus. Doherty recalls taking a big step with the Polymnia and auditioning to do a solo piece.

The step was the right one, and Doherty had her own place on the group's concert showbill. However, when the night came, Doherty found out that she was last on the program and had to wait all night to perform the Gershwin tune, "Love Walked In."

"It was frightening when I got up there," Doherty said. "I still get nervous, but it's good. The people are supportive."

During all this time Doherty was working during the day as a secretary in the Corcoran House, a Melrose nursing home.

She remembers being asked to come in and sing at teas, but still being shy. That lasted until a co-worker, Peg Goyette, said she would play piano and rehearse with Doherty.

The next job was to put together a show. Doherty had watched a number of other performers hired by the home who would come in and sing religious songs and serious works.

However, Doherty, who was known to entertain the residents at Corcoran House by wearing hats and costumes on holidays, thought she knew her audience would want something a little livelier.

She and Goyette worked up a set of 1920's music, which she researched at the library.

As the pair rehearsed the songs, Doherty's mind started working on the staging and she would think of scenes and costumes to go along with the songs.

That has grown into a basic black leotard costume that is used as the base for various combinations of tops and skirts that are put on and taken off as the songs call for changes.

Doherty's one person show now consists of costumes that go along with skits ranging from CHIQUITA BANANA is just one of the many acts that Bernice Doherty does in her one-person show. She takes the show around to area nursing homes, Councils on Aging and other places where her specialized style of music and entertainment will be enjoyed.

Chiquita Banana to a blushing pregnant bride that sings "I Should Have Danced All Night."

"It went over really well and they loved it," Doherty said. "People started asking me to do other things."

At the time Doherty was doing the shows for free, accepting enough money to pay the pianist.

That changed after an engagement at the First United Methodist Church in Melrose, where they insisted on paying Doherty for her performance.

The irony of Doherty's climb is that the First United Methodist is the church where the choir director is Richard DeMone who was later to be a part of her professional growth.

A friend brought Doherty to the 1280 Restaurant in Brookline and she met DeMone, who was playing with professional partner Patty O'Keefe. The pair got to talking and DeMone started to coach and accompany Doherty at some of her gigs.

She describes DeMone as an accompanist, not just a pianist.

"He helped me lower my voice," Doherty said of DeMone. And when it came time to return

Lecture October 6th on using a health care proxy

A law passed in 1990 allows Massachusetts residents to ensure that their values and wishes regarding health care will be respected, even if they lose the ability to speak for themselves.

Called the Massachusetts Health Care Proxy, it is a legally recognized document that permits state residents to appoint someone they trust, such as a family member or close friend, to make medical treatment decisions for them if they lose the ability to decide for themselves.

Lawrence Memorial Hospital of Medford will sponsor a lecture on Tuesday, October 6 at 1 p.m. at the Council on Aging, 101 Riverside Avenue in Medford. Richard Michienzi, Esq. of the Medford law firm of Bishop, Ahern, Barry and Michienzi, will explain the Massachusetts Health Care Proxy and its importance to all citizens.

The lecture is free, but registration is required. To register or for more information, please call the Lawrence Memorial Hospital Community Relations Office at (617) 396-9250, Ext. 1633 before October 2.

The ordinary approach to management just isn't working.

The current economic situation is just one example of how yesterday's approach to management simply isn't meeting the challenges of today's complex world.

Which is why we believe it's time for a fresh look at management.

At the Lesley College School of Management, our curriculum features an emphasis on leadership skills, ethics, team-building, negotiating, diversity in the workplace and many other areas vital to success in today's changing world.

What's more, since our students are working adults, they put their learning to the test every single work day.

Our accelerated 17-month Master's in Management program will be offered this Fall at two convenient locations:

About the Towns

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

"About The Towns" covers recent events in the 13-town Middlesex East area. Because Middlesex East deadlines are early, please check the front sections of this paper for up-to-date information about your city or town. We also welcome original material - please send it to Phyllis Nissen, "About The Towns," Middlesex East Supplement, Box 240, Reading, MA 01867.

TEWKSBURY - Artist Kathleen McNally of Saco, Maine recently visited Tewksbury in preparation for a new piece of art. A specialist in ink and watercolor architectural drawings, McNally will be producing a watercolor of Tewksbury Common and Town Hall, with sidelights of nationally known sculptor Mico Kaufman's public statues of a Wamesit Indian and Helen Keller - Anne Sullivan.

"Muster Park," Kaufman's new fountain at South and Main Street, is expected to be unveiled soon.

WOBURN - According to the Woburn edition of the Daily Times Chronicle, the Massachusetts Port Authority has informally let it be known that Woburn is the next site for an off-airport parking facility, similar to those in Framingham and Braintree, both major successes for MassPort in relieving congestion at Logan Airport and traffic into East Boston.

"Woburn Express" would be a park-and-bus service into Logan Airport from Woburn's MBTA parking lot off Route 128 in front of the Marriott Courtyard across from Woburn Mall.

At one point, MassPort officials had discussed using land at the Showcase Cinemas in Woburn.

WAKEFIELD - On Wednesday, October 7th at 8:30 p.m., the Wakefield Festival Chorus will open its fifth season of rehearsals and performances at the First Parrish Congregational Church in Wakefield.

Directed by Dr. Fred Broer, the 60-singer chorus draws members from local communities such as Lynnfield, Malden, Melrose, Reading, Stoneham, and Wakefield; and welcomes new members at its Wednesday evening rehearsals. It performs --Reading has philanthropist Arnold Berger, and Burlington has BEST BET.

Since 1983, more than $300,000 has been invested in more than 1,000 projects aimed at improving the educational quality of the Burlington Public Schools, thanks to BEST BET - Building Excellent Schools Through Business-Education Teamwork - and its founder John C. Rennie, chairman and chief executive officer of Pacer Systems.

Rennie is now the chairman of the Massachusetts Business Alliance for Education which is working with the state legislature and Governor Weld to come up with an educational reform package that will include $2.5 billion in funds to change the structure of education in Massachusetts and to introduce new programs.

BEST BET spends between $30,000 and $35,000 annually to supplement educational programs that have been eliminated from the budget. Last year, it contributed funds for such activities as the math league convention, science olympiad, field trips to theaters and museums, and equipment, including cartridges for PCs, books and visual aids for art, magazine subscriptions, and special programs.

BEST BET has been copied by 20 communities, and Rennie plans to expand the program.

--"The teachers paid for the conference out of their own pockets," notes the "Town Crier," "and some paid an additional fee for graduate college credit upon completion of a term paper."

Tewksbury teachers were among the more than 300 New England teachers who attended a Pathways to Literacy conference at the Andover Sheraton Conference Center.

Keynote speakers included children's authors such as Eric Carle, Bernard Weber and Bill Martin, Jr.; and daily workshops taught by classroom teachers covered areas like whole language foundations, bringing books alive, poetry, assessments, creative writing, thematic units, parent connections, and reading and writing conferences.

Participating Tewksbury teachers were: Karla Conway, Alma Davis, Meredith DeBow, Mary DiCacio, Mary Feick, Trudi Hennemuth, Barbara Krueger, Judith Lodi, Janice Lunn, Mary Manseau, Elaine Maxwell, Patricia McDonnell, Maureen McSheehy, Ann O'Hara, Rita O'Sullivan, Marjorie Petalas, and Gerri Rubico.

the favor, Doherty was able to help DeMone and his partners clean and renovate the Kendall Cafe, where DeMone and O'Keefe perform their show and Doherty has a part in the melodrama "The Drunkard".

Doherty has also received voice coaching from Boston's Eddie Watson, who has helped many of the top name Las Vegas and Broadway singers keep those top spots.

As easy as it all sounds Doherty has faced a number of personal problems that have had her in and out of professional therapy over the years.

She has attended pain clinics and even taken lessons in the Eastern Religions. She is still a follower of the relaxation techniques she has learned at the hands of a Guru.

However, when she is on stage she is truly able to relax and forget her troubles, while helping people forget theirs.

Doherty especially prefers to perform for senior citizens and elderly.

"The elderly are the forgotten people of the world," she said. "They love music."

Doherty is so in love with her avocation that she has convinced several other performers to try and work nursing homes, Councils on Aging and other similar groups.

Recently Doherty had to cut back on her shows while preparing for her son's marriage.

That has taken place and now she is ready to return to the Boards. Along the way, Doherty has not forgotten her family and believes they are very important to her.

She especially relayed her thanks to husband, Jack, who is an associate engineer with Lockheed Sanders Corporation.

During those times that Bernice had to spend away from the house and the three children -- Diane (Richmond), Bob (just married), and Linda who has recently graduated with a psychology degree from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst -- Jack watched over them.

"If it wasn't that my husband was supportive, I don't think I could have done all this," Doherty said.

Although she enjoys doing her one-person show and does not want to give it up, Doherty said that her next step will be to perform in a big musical production.

If I were a producer/director Auntie Mame would come to mind as the right showcase.

TEMPLE SHALOM EMETH FOOD DRIVE

Temple Shalom Emeth Religious School, 14-16 Lexington St., Burlington, will be having a Sukkot Food Drive on Sunday, October 11th. The children of the congregation will be asked to bring canned goods, which will be donated to the Community Food Pantry in Burlington, in celebration of the Festival of Abundance.

The holiday of Sukkot is a harvest festival, at which Jews celebrate the goodness of the Earth and the abundance which God has given them. The children who attend the Temple religious school will be asked to personally contribute to others as part of the celebration of this festival.

This time of year is ideal for this kind of activity, because the stocks of the local food pantries are currently very low. Members of the community are more than welcome to participate in the this drive but they may also donate directly. Items that are needed include: canned fruit, powdered milk, peanut butter and jelly, tuna, spaghetti sauce and canned tomatoes, dry cereal, rice, instant mashed potatoes, powdered drink mix, tea and coffee.

For more information contact Michael Cohen at (617) 938-0107; Carolyn Goodman at (508) 655-6895; the Community Food Pantry in Burlington at (617) 270-6625; or Linda Scott, Woburn Board of Social Concern at (617) 935-6495.

Special Care Nursery at Winchester Hospital

The birth of a child is almost always a joyous occasion. For Patricia Meade and her husband Paul Therkelson from Andover, however, the joy they should have felt at the birth of their son Jeffrey was eclipsed by the fear that their baby might not live.

Born prematurely at 27 weeks, Jeffrey weighed barely 1000 grams -- just over two pounds -- at birth.

"Jeffrey had several problems when he was born," explains Alan Fujii, M.D., a neonatologist and pediatric cardiologist who is the Director of Special Care at Winchester Hospital. Dr. Fujii is also a member of the neonatology group at Children's Hospital in Boston where Jeffrey was transferred after his birth at Brigham & Women's Hospital.

"Because his lungs were not sufficiently developed, Jeffrey required mechanical ventilation. And at two weeks of age, his condition suddenly worsened and he became sick enough to die," Dr. Fujii says.

"Jeffrey wasn't expected to live," relates his mother, Patricia Meade. "We had several family conferences, and it was Dr. Fujii who had to give us this news, several times." But Jeffrey rallied and, after two months of care at Children's, he was transferred to Winchester Hospital's Special Care Nursery to convalesce.

The Special Care Nursery is the oldest Massachusetts Department of Public Health designated Level II nursery north of Boston.

This year's competition is offered for boys and girls in two age brackets (U-12 and U-14) and in two divisions (one for premier and top travel teams and the second for all other teams). Each team will play a minimum of three round robin games and trophies will be awarded to the first and second place finishers in each division.

If your team is interested in entering, contact the Tournament Director, Vitek Byszewski (508-369-2928) immediately since the deadline for sign-up is in early October.

Equipped to care for premature or high-risk infants, it is affiliated with the Joint Program in Neonatology in Boston. The neonatology groups at Children's Hospital covers the Special Care Nursery at Winchester Hospital, under the direction of Dr. Fujii.

"Dr. Fujii transferred from Children's to Winchester Hospital right before Jeffrey did," explains Patricia Meade. "It was very comforting to have that continuity of care."

"Jeffrey had severe chronic lung disease when he came to Winchester," says Dr. Fujii. "We took care of him for about two months and, even after we sent him home, he had several relapses." He was readmitted three times, and seen on an outpatient basis for several months after that.

Today, Jeffrey is two and a half and doing fine. "He's a really busy little guy," says his mother. "He's still making up for time in terms of his respiratory development; he still requires oxygen at night, for example. But we feel like we've gotten a second chance."

On September 13, Jeffrey and his parents -- together with dozens of other "alumni" of the Special Care Nursery -- attended the Nursery's third annual reunion.

"At previous reunions, there's never been a parent thanking the staff of the Nursery," notes Patricia Meade. "And they're the reason we're there. I'd be happy to be the one to do it, because we're so grateful for their support and kindness in the tough times."

Woodchips

ANTHONY MANCONI

The football season has started for most high schools and colleges. I remember years ago when I took Kathy to the High School football game. I pointed to a '62' fullback and said to Kathy, "See that number 52? He's going to be our best man this year." She turned to me and exclaimed, "Well, it's about time, you four-eyed cheapskate. I'm tired of going with you on Dutch Treat dinner dates."

At Kathy's "Bridal Shower" she received 14 toasters, seven coffee makers, four waffle irons, 18 pot holders (very useful, Kathy had a 42-inch waist) and some wise person gave her a hot water bag for me.

My cousin Mario fell off a staging on a construction job where he worked as a carpenter. He sued the company for two million dollars. He claimed that because of the injury he couldn't raise his right arm above his shoulder therefore he couldn't work at his trade. The judge sympathized with Mario and was about to award him a judgement of two million dollars. But, as an afterthought, the judge inquired, "By the way, Mario. How high could you raise your right arm before this unfortunate accident?" Mario, almost seeing all that money in his grasp, jumped up from his seat and raised his arm over his head and shouted, "Way up here, judge!"

Folks, most of the time at my house, either Kathy or I turn on the TV, then flip through all the channels, then turn the darn thing off. Most of the programs are either stupid, obscene or killing and shooting stories. There have been very few occasions of five star programs. One of them that I recommended in Woodchips was "Anne of Green Gables" and recently a very humorous English program called "Are you served" on Channel 2 at 7:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. Tune in folks, I know you'll like it.

Robert Burns, Manager of the Woburn Elks asked Father John Crispo, "Father, is it a sin if I play golf on Sunday?" Father John smiled and replied, "Bob, the way the Chipper told me that you play golf, it's a sin no matter which day you play." ...Danny Tully, who married a real "spitfire" of a blonde bombshell, said to me, "It would have been better if I had loved and 'lost.' It would have been a lot cheaper."

Kathy has already warned me saying, "I've got to have a mink coat this winter. Your Aunt Nora has one, your sister Ann O'Donnell has one and Jimmy Geary's wife, Betty, has one, so I've got to have a mink coat too!" I could almost see a few hundred dollar bills going down the drain so I said, "Dear, the only one who absolutely has to have a mink coat is a mink!"

Massachusetts Audubon Society's Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary in Topsfield is offering a number of programs for children this fall. Pre-registration is required for all programs. For more information on these and other programs call the Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary at (508) 837-9264.

Nature Detectives - a series of nature classes for children in grades 1 and 2 (or ages 6-8), meets for five Saturdays (Oct. 10 and 24, Nov. 7 and 21, Dec. 5) from 10 a.m. to noon. An introduction indoors is followed by a walk on the sanctuary.

Creature Features - is a two-part workshop for children in grades 3-6. Meetings on Saturdays, October 10 and 17, 10:30 to noon, children will create their own 3-D animal adaptation masks and learn how big-eared bats, sharp-billed vultures, and eight-legged spiders are adapted for survival.

Halloween: Its Natural and Unnatural History - This fun-filled annual family Halloween tradition will be held on Friday, October 23, 7 to 9 p.m. and again on Saturday, October 24, 7 to 9 p.m. Recommended for ages 5 and up. Adults and children are encouraged to come in costume. Explore some of the history and myths of Halloween through storytelling and a night walk to meet some of the Sanctuary's nocturnal animals! The group will be outdoors most of the evening so please dress warmly. Refreshments will be served. Fee: $7/adults, $5/children (Mass. Audubon members: $5/adults, $3/children). Pre-registration required.

Kerrigan, all of Melrose; Lt. William McKay, Chris Leuci, Flo Savage, Diane Stevenson, George Frye, all of Saugus.

Forest Knowles of Burlington told me, "Chipper, I used to be conceited but now I know I'm perfect." Humility was never one of "Woody's" virtues...Sign in a jewelry store window, "Ladies, come in - have your ears pierced while you wait."...Football is a contest where it takes some spectators "Four Quarters" to finish a "Fifth."...We had our usual Saturday night fight at our house last weekend but it wasn't anything much this time - only two police cars.

While in a Woburn bank last week someone shouted, "Did anyone drop a roll of bills with a rubber band around it?" Three people quickly shouted, "I did!" "Good," replied the Samaritan, "here, I found your rubber band."

Many years ago when my father wanted to borrow money to fix our old house, I went with him to the bank. My father's English wasn't too good but he insisted in doing the talking. "I woulda like to speak to the loan arranger." The wiseguy assistant manager said, "I'ma sorry sir, the Lone Arranger is out to lunch, woulda you like speak to Tonto?" "Listen here, Paleface," I snapped, "someday I'm going to buy this bank and the first thing I'll do is fire you." Guess what, folks, I didn't buy the bank but I married his daughter Kathy O'Donnell and the way she spends money she really believes that I own the bank.

I remember asking Kathy, "Do you like flowers?" "Oh indeed I do," she replied. Well, I came right back with (sticking my face out) "Here are 'tu-lips' you can have." Well, she gave me a "smack" with her right hand so now I have 'three-lips' for anyone to have....A golf pro told Jimmy Quinno of Woburn, "Don't play for two weeks, then give up golf for good." I don't know why he told Jimmy that. After all, he missed getting a "Hole in One" by seventeen strokes.

Remember the "Diners" that looked like railroad cars? Well, I sure miss them. Going in one for breakfast I shouted to Tom Dolan, the owner, "How about a little service Tom?" Tom, the quickest, wittiest Irishman I ever met, came right back with, "You got service Chipper when the door opened."...Kathy tells all her Gossip Club members that our marriage was for better or worse. "The Chipper couldn't have done any better and I couldn't have done any worse."

My grandmother, Mary, was in her late 80's. Whenever she had trouble sleeping I would get her a glass of warm milk and, unknown to her, slip a little gin in it. She would sip some at first, then slowly drink a little more and then finish it off with a broad smile, slapping her knee and saying, "Wow!, what a cow, what a cow."

Dreamboats are Catherine Doherty, Jenn Russo and Liz Kelley, all of Winchester.

Super Star is Ed Ciampa of Crest Buick of Woburn.

Children's Museum celebrates Columbus

As part of a year-long observance of the Columbus quinqucentenary, The Children's Museum presents 1492-1992: Changes in the Americas, a series of exhibits, performances, and activities beginning in September through November which present and explore some of the many perspectives on the voyage of Christopher Columbus.

The first event of the series will be a dual exhibit opening on Sunday, October 4. Columbus: Through Indian Eyes allows visitors to view the 500 year old story through the eyes of both Columbus and Native Americans. Developed in collaboration with the Museum's Native American Advisory Board, the exhibit details the impact of the Spaniards' arrival on the Taino Indians of South America through a series of scenic dioramas and actual excerpts from Columbus's travel log. The second exhibit, POWWOW, is a dramatic photo exhibit of the Shoshone and Arapahoe tribal powwows by photographer Elijah Cobb.

The centerpiece of the planned festivities is a Columbus Day weekend intertribal powwow on Boston's MDC Esplanade/Hatch Shell. Hosted by The Children's Museum and Dance Umbrella, the two-day event will be a celebration of the 2.5 million Native Americans in the continental U.S. -- 10,000 of whom reside in the Boston area. The festivities will be free of charge and will feature the return to Boston of American Indian Dance Theatre, a company who last performed in Boston in 1990 to sold-out audiences. The powwows will include Native America and Latin music, dance, crafts, storytelling, food and pageantry. More than 20 tribes will be represented during this powwow expected to be the largest ever in New England. For more information, visitors can call the What's Up Line at (617) 426-8855.

Disc jockey Jay Kilban offers music variety

The disc jockey service is becoming the most popular way to entertain, and Jay Kilban is making a name for himself! The disc jockey business is more than just music these days. It is a personality behind the portable microphone. Jay recently hosted a wedding with a guest list including Joe Cortez, one of Boston's most popular radio personalities. Joe heard Jay on one of the Boston Harbor Cruises and hired him on the spot for a family wedding -- what a compliment! "Jay really set the mood on festive and kept it there," said Cortez.

and Special Programs, (508) 741-6300. Register at least one week in advance of the course: in person at SSC Monday through Thursday, 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. and on Friday between 11 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Phone-in registration is available Monday through Thursday, 5 to 8 p.m. at (508) 741-6334 using MasterCard or Visa.

"Family members of all ages really got out there and danced. We had a super time!"

Jay teaches his guests how to "do" the electric slide or will put on a hard hat and tool belt and dance with them to the "YMCA," a new comeback, as well as the Saturday Night Fever songs and other line dances. Music games and limbo contests are also very popular. Jay demonstrates his expertise in music and people when he lifts up a crowd, sets a mood with light jazz, or caters to the more experienced dancers with polkas and songs from "old blue eyes," Frank Sinatra. Weddings are his specialty and he loves their music and special songs...a popular favorite, "Unforgettable" with Nat King Cole.

Jay has a very large collection of music of all varieties for all ages, and more importantly the ability to feel out a crowd and its personality to boot! The disc jockey service is the way to entertain, for any occasion (most recently Jay hosted a very celebrated christening) especially with Jay Kilban of JK Music Productions. Persons with questions may call 1-800-974-4714.

"Mr. Saturday Night"

by Rochelle Flynn

"Mr. Saturday Night" Starring Billy Crystal, David Paymer, Julie Warner. Directed and produced by Crystal. Written by Crystal, Lowell Ganz, Babaloo Mandel. Rated R.

An elderly comedian, Buddy Young, Jr., is forced to look back on his career, and his life - and finds it was all pretty mediocre.

Told in the present, but enhanced with numerous flashbacks spanning 50 years, this is an amazingly poignant story about ambition and all the things we do to keep from getting where we think we belong. Billy Crystal, who directed, produced and co-wrote the film, plays the acid-tongued comedian who uses comedy as a form of emotional armor. Sure, he has talent, but he never learned to roll with the punches. And there are a lot of punches, most aimed below the belt, in the entertainment biz.

The movie kicks off with Buddy giving an interview to a reporter. While he talks, we see the images he is describing: his mother's hefty arms cooking, cooking and cooking some more. His relatives, all big, laughing people who love to watch Buddy and his brother Stan perform in the living room. It's a wonderful scene, because Crystal the director captures not only humor, but a heartfelt love for what was obviously a happy time.

Crystal manages to convey several emotional layers throughout the film, as Buddy is a prime example of a complex, fully fleshed out character. He may be cracking jokes, but you can see the anger, or the pain, just below the surface. And sometimes you can see the love he has such a difficult time expressing. Crystal's performance is right on the money, but so is David Paymer's, who plays Stan, Buddy's brother and manager.

Stan is the one who backed out of the act as a kid. Fear may not have effected him in the living room, but it kept him off the stage. Paymer's performance allows us to see past his hound dog exterior to the competition he feels for Buddy's career and the funny, intelligent woman Buddy married (played by Julie Warner). Much of the polish on this cinematic gem is supplied by the supporting players. Helen Hunt's good intentions are balanced by a slight edginess as an agent who tries to help an elderly Buddy resurrect his career. Ron Silver shows up as an arrogant director and Jerry Orbach as the insincere head of a talent agency who proves, yet again, that there is no loyalty in show business. Best of all is Mary Mars as Buddy's neglected, angry, dysfunctional daughter. She is a walking wound, but capable of healing. Maya imbues her with just the right amount of acrimony to keep from being just a one-note character.

But at the heart of this story is Crystal. It's obvious that Crystal knows this guy. He's not loveable, he's not a genius, but he's very human. Crystal created an emotional landscape that crosses back and forth from the eagerness of youth to the disappointment that comes 30 years after your career has hit its peak. That there is a lot of humor here doesn't hurt.

Short Takes

Sarafina, based on the Broadway musical, stars Whoppi Goldberg as a strong willed teacher and the charismatic Leleti Khumalo in the title role. A combination of a school girl's dream of stardom and the brutal violence of South Africa, this film is pulled in two opposing directions. The infectious music will send ripples through you, and the dramatic storyline guarantees shivers. But the two elements just don't jibe as well as they did on stage. Rated PG-13. **

The Last of the Mohicans is one of those huge films with lots of magical movie moments. But once you get past all that swelling music, there are some great action scenes. Daniel Day-Lewis plays Nathaniel Poe, renamed from James Fenimore Copper's Natty Bumppo. Day-Lewis is the reason to see this film, as there is much fun to be had watching him shoot his flintlock rifle while running after the enemy. The scenery and battles are fab, even if the whole thing, revised plot included, is a bit too Hollywood. Rated R.  1/2

Singles is a fun, if somewhat predictable comedy by writer/director Cameron Crowe ("Fast Times at Ridgemont High"). This Twentysomething paean to love in the 1990s and the Seattle music sound dishes up witty dialogue and intriguing characters. Kyla Sedgwick, Campbell Scott and Bridget Fonda make for an appealing cast. All told, it's a funny and clever flick, even if the ending is exactly what we expect. Rated PG-13. ***

Sneakers is one of those Hollywood anomalies -- it is bitingly clever, fast-paced and holds up right through to the end. Robert Redford leads a crew of burglars who work for banks and insurance agencies to make sure security systems are all they should be. But Redford walks into a con that is one smoke bomb and red herring after another. Boisterous good fun. Rated PG-13.  1/2

Wind is the tortuously long tale of a sailer (Matthew Modine) who loses the America's Cup and wins it back with the help of his ex-girlfriend, Jennifer Grey. The sailing shots are spectacular, but the plot, which veers between inane and mundane, is far from sea worthy. Rated PG-13. *

Captain Ron is a return to the pleasing, but plastic, Disney movies of our youth. Kurt Russell is the scruffy, sexy Caribbean rent-a-captain hired by Martin Short and wife Mary Kay Place to transport an inherited boat to Florida. The mishaps are typical, but this makes for a light-hearted family flick. Rated PG-13. **

Honeymoon in Vegas stars Nicholas Cage as a New York detective who reluctantly takes his long-time girlfriend, Sarah Jessica Parker, to Vegas for a quickie wedding. Instead, he loses her to professional gambler James Caan. This lightweight fun is more likely to amuse you than make you roar with laughter, but is worth seeing just for the Flying Elvises sky diving troupe. Rated PG-13. ***

Single White Female stars Bridget Fonda as a computer consultant who places an ad in the

Benefit auction helps NF

The 11th Annual Prince Restaurant pizza and soda party to benefit neurofibromatosis (NF) research will take place on Wednesday, October 14 at 7 p.m. at the Prince Restaurant in Saugus.

Once again that charming Irishman, John Corcoran will delight the audience with his songs and humor. There will be raffle prizes, door prizes and an exciting auction. The owners of the Prince Restaurant, Arthur and Rosemarie Castraberti will provide all the pizza and soda. All this for $15 a person. Reserve early by calling the NF office at 508-657-5532 or Kate Duff at 617-944-0714.

All money raised will go to find the cause, cure and treatment of neurofibromatosis. NF is a progressive genetic disorder which can cause multiple tumors on nerve endings throughout the body, including the brain, the spinal cord and on the optic and auditory nerves. On the skin, these tumors disfigure. Inside the body, they can kill. Over 100,000 people in the United States and 1 in 300 births are affected by NF. At this time there is no cure.

A family tradition

spurred on by an early bout with sight-threatening retinitis, in which she learned to live without sight for several months, she traded in the unpredictable life of a family practitioner for the more manageable schedule of an ophthalmologist. She brought into her new career an understanding of the "whole patient," often missing from the background of medical specialists.

Dr. Margaret's unusually keen sense of observation has changed the lives of thousands of people around the world. While associated with the University of Tennessee in Memphis, she noticed that a large number of people coming into the clinics of the affiliated John Gaston Hospital were afflicted with glaucoma at advanced sight-robbing stages. In a pilot study, she determined that four percent of patients coming into the hospital's clinics for other reasons actually had glaucoma in its early symptomless stages, with more than 25 percent showing increased ocular tension -- an early indicator of tendency toward glaucoma.

On the strength of her findings, she was awarded a grant from the U.S. Public Health Service to continue her work and later co-authored the first paper (which became a lead article in The New England Journal of Medicine) pointing out that glaucoma is more prevalent in people with chronic debilitating diseases such as hypertension, heart disease, diabetes and gout. The renown of her work prompted eye doctors across the nation to begin glaucoma screening as a routine part of eye exams on patients over 40. It also served as a catalyst for the initiation of screening by the Lions Club, now well-known for its sight-saving worldwide.

Doctors Ernest and Margaret wrote another important chapter in their family's medical history by contracting early in their marriage as medical missionaries at a Seventh Day Adventist hospital in Puerto Rico. During their five years on the island they treated some of its most disadvantaged people, generally raised the standard of medical care available.

After returning to the states, the Horsleys settled in Melrose in 1967, where they live today, and Dr. Ernest joined the staff of NEMH. Later, Dr. Margaret served there as Chief of Ophthalmology for three years, a leadership position her son, Wilson holds today. Initially, the Horsleys established offices in the old NEMH building, then took offices in Reading. In 1979, they moved to the newly-built Professional Building on Main Street in Stoneham, where the Horsley Clinic resided for more than 20 years.

Seventy-nine young women have entered Austin Preparatory School in Reading as members of the first coeducational classes in the school's thirty-year history.

Female students are represented in all of Austin's classes from sixth grade to senior year of high school, but are most numerous in the high school's freshman class. About half of the freshmen who are entering the school for the first time are girls.

Austin Headmaster Paul J. Moran noted: "If this trend continues, and we have no reason to believe that it won't, in a few years we will be well on our way to achieving our goal of a 50/50 ratio." Austin opened this year with an enrollment of 505.

Their son, Dr. Wilson Horsley or "Dr. Will" (as he is known to many patients), studied ophthalmology at a time when new equipment and technologies were dramatically changing the face of the specialty. During his years in medical school and residency, new laser and microsurgical technologies began to make their appearance on the scene, raising the young physician's interest in surgical, as well as medical ophthalmology.

Shortly after joining the Horsley Eye Clinic in 1981, he began to introduce some of these new techniques, including extracapsular (behind the eye capsule) lens implant surgery, to the region and gained prominence in their use. He was instrumental in first bringing laser surgery to New England Memorial Hospital. Eventually, the dramatic sight-restoring results he achieved prompted other physicians to employ techniques that "Dr. Will" used. He and his family live in Andover.

According to Dean of Student Activities Celia Barletta, the school's extracurricular program will provide opportunities for the girls to become quickly integrated into the school's life by participation in clubs and intramurals. The school has also begun an interscholastic program for girls' sports, and will expand that program as the female enrollment rises. This year the school will sponsor all-girl teams in freshman soccer, cheerleading, freshman basketball, softball and tennis. Girls will be welcomed as members of coed teams in cross country, ski racing, track, and golf, according to Athletic Director David Johnson.

Headmaster Paul Moran commented on the cheerfulness which the girls and their parents have already shown on campus, and the enthusiastic atmosphere during the opening of this historic school year at Austin.

In his opening remarks to the faculty he stated: "We stand this morning on the verge of a whole new opportunity. We must dedicate ourselves to the daily creation of a new tradition that challenges and celebrates, supports and corrects, counsels and nurtures boys and girls, young men and young women, through pre-adolescence to young adulthood... I have seldom, if ever, felt as much excitement at the beginning of a new school year."
